The Office of Hearing Officers (OHO) issued the following decisions, which have been appealed to or called for review by the NAC as of June 30, 2009. The NAC may increase, decrease, modify or reverse the findings and sanctions imposed in the decision. Initial decisions where the time for appeal has not yet expired will be reported in future FINRA Notices.

Jerry William Burch (CRD #1450138, Registered Principal, Newport Coast, California) was fined $28,000 and barred from association with any FINRA member in any capacity. The sanctions were based on findings that Burch made recommendations to customers to purchase a stock without disclosing that a relative's account was simultaneously selling the same stock and failed to notify his member firm of the relative's outside account. The findings stated that Burch made false representations to his firm that customer purchases were unsolicited, resulting in false firm records. The findings also stated that Burch failed to amend his Form U4 with material information.

This decision has been appealed to the NAC. The sanctions are not in effect pending consideration of the appeal. (FINRA Case #2005000324301)

Harry Friedman (CRD #2548017, Registered Principal, Woodmere, New York) and Joseph Schnaier (CRD #2656314, Registered Representative, New York, New York) were each fined $77,500; Friedman was suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for 45 days and Schnaier was suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for 90 days. The fines are due and payable at such time as Friedman and Schnaier seek to return to the securities industry. The sanctions were based on findings that Friedman and Schnaier participated in private securities transactions without prior written notice to, or prior written approval from, their member firm.

This decision has been appealed to the NAC. The sanctions are not in effect pending consideration of the appeal. (FINRA Case #2005000835801)

FCS Securities (CRD #40177, New York, New York) was fined $5,000, jointly and severally, and suspended from FINRA membership for four months; the suspension converts to an expulsion after the four months if the firm has not filed audited reports acceptable to FINRA. The sanctions were based on findings that an individual, acting on the firm's behalf, failed to finalize annual financial statements as required by SEC Rule 17a-5, from which it was not exempt. The findings stated that the individual engaged in an elaborate subterfuge in an attempt to generate qualifying activity that would make the firm exempt from that requirement.

This decision has been appealed to the NAC. The sanctions are not in effect pending consideration of the appeal. (FINRA Case #2007010306901)
Midas Securities, LLC (CRD #103680, Anaheim, California), World Trade Financial Corporation (CRD #42638, San Diego, California), Jason Troy Adams (CRD #2137404, Registered Principal, San Diego, California), Frank Edward Brickell (CRD #3257725, Registered Principal, Encinitas, California), Jay S. Lee (CRD #4338187, Registered Principal, Anaheim Hills, California) and Rodney Preston Michel (CRD #1275392, Registered Principal, San Diego, California).

Midas Securities, LLC was fined $55,000, World Trade Financial Corporation was fined $30,000, Adams was fined $10,000 and suspended from association with any FINRA member in any principal capacity for 30 business days, Brickell was fined $15,000 and suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for 30 business days, Lee was fined $20,000 and suspended from association with any FINRA member in any principal capacity for two years, and Michel was fined $15,000 and suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for 45 days. The sanctions were based on findings that the firms and Brickell sold and transferred unregistered shares of a security using means or instruments of transportation or communication in interstate commerce in connection with the transactions, and failed to establish that the stock was exempt from registration pursuant to Section 5 of the Securities Exchange Act and failed to prove that they were entitled to rely on the brokers’ exemption contained in Section 4(4) of the Securities Act of 1933.

The findings stated that the firms failed to establish and maintain adequate supervisory systems to achieve compliance with the requirements of Section 5 of the Securities Act and that the firms, Lee and Michel failed to establish and maintain a system and written procedures to supervise the activities of registered representatives who sold unregistered securities. The findings also stated that Adams and Michel failed to follow up on “red flags” indicating that Brickell was engaged in the illegal sales of unregistered securities, and World Trade, acting through Adams and Michel, failed to reasonably supervise Brickell. The findings also included that Lee, and Midas Securities through Lee, failed to reasonably supervise firm brokers and to implement written supervisory procedures to prevent and detect violations of Section 5 of the Securities Act.

This decision has been appealed to the NAC. The sanctions are not in effect pending consideration of the appeal. (FINRA Case #2005000075703)

Richard Anthony Neaton (CRD #2585328, Registered Representative, Port Charlotte, Florida) was fined $5,000 and suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for one year. The fine is due and payable when Neaton returns to the securities industry. The sanctions were based on findings that Neaton willfully failed to amend his Form U4 with material information.

This decision has been appealed to the NAC. The sanctions are not in effect pending consideration of the appeal. (FINRA Case #2007009082902)

Scott Ryan Tischler (CRD #3248953, Registered Representative, Richmond, Virginia) was fined $5,000 and suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for one year. The sanctions were based on findings that Tischler borrowed a total of $67,000 from a customer, contrary to his member firm’s prohibition of its registered representatives borrowing money from firm customers. The findings stated that Tischler completed, signed and submitted annual firm compliance questionnaires in which he failed to disclose the loans from the customer.
This decision has been appealed to the NAC. The sanctions are not in effect pending consideration of the appeal. (FINRA Case #2007008370701)

Westrock Advisors, Inc. (CRD #114338, New York, New York) was censured and fined $35,000. The sanctions were based on findings that the firm, in connection with an arbitration proceeding involving a customer, failed to produce documents as ordered by an NASD arbitration panel. The findings stated that the firm claimed that the requested documents, including order tickets and trade blotters, either did not exist or could not be obtained from third parties, when, in fact, the firm possessed the documents or was later able to obtain them.

This decision has been appealed to the NAC. The sanctions are not in effect pending consideration of the appeal. (FINRA Case #2006005696601)

FINRA Fines Three Firms Over $1.25 Million for Failing to Detect, Investigate and Report Suspicious Transactions in Penny Stocks

J.P. Turner, Park Financial, Legent Clearing Ignored Indications Customers May Have Been Engaged in Illegal Conduct

Two Individuals Barred from Securities Industry, One Suspended and Fined

The Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) has fined three broker-dealers—J.P. Turner & Co., of Atlanta, Park Financial Group, Inc., of Maitland, FL, and Legent Clearing, LLC, of Omaha—for failing to implement reasonable anti-money laundering (AML) compliance programs, including the failure to detect, investigate and report instances of potentially suspicious transactions in low-priced stocks.

J.P. Turner was fined $525,000, Park Financial was fined $400,000 and Legent Clearing was fined $350,000. In addition, two individuals—Park Financial’s former CEO and AML compliance officer Gordon Charles Cantley and J.P. Turner equity trader John McFarland—were barred permanently from the securities industry. David Farber, a Park Financial equity trader, was fined $25,000 and suspended in all capacities for 30 days. S. Cheryl Bauman, J.P. Turner’s former AML compliance officer, was fined $30,000 and suspended from acting as a principal in a securities firm for 18 months, while Robert Meyer, a former J.P. Turner branch manager, was fined $5,000 and suspended as a principal for one month.

“It is critical that firms promptly and fully investigate and report suspicious transactions—because law enforcement agencies and the Securities and Exchange Commission use Suspicious Activity Reports to investigate and prosecute money laundering, securities fraud and other financial crimes,” said Susan L. Merrill, FINRA Executive Vice President and Chief of Enforcement. “Each of these firms had inadequate AML procedures and each of these firms processed suspicious trades without adequately following up on red flags—such as deposits and liquidations of large quantities of penny stocks by customers or the principals of the issuing firms that had a history of securities fraud or stock manipulation.”

The Bank Secrecy Act and FINRA rules require all broker-dealers to design and implement programs to detect and report suspicious transactions at, by or through the firm. The program must be tailored to the risks of the firm’s business. For such transactions to be reportable, the firm does not need actual knowledge that the customer is in fact committing a crime or that the funds are the proceeds of a crime.

In each of the three cases announced today, the firms failed to establish and/or implement reasonable procedures to detect and report suspicious trading in low-priced securities. Certain trading in low-priced securities, or “penny stocks,” creates a risk that these securities can be used by unscrupulous issuers of the stock, stock promoters and others affiliated with the issuers for money laundering or to commit securities fraud or market manipulation. These firms failed to detect and investigate potentially suspicious transactions. Many of the transactions in these cases presented sufficient red flags that the firms should have had reason to suspect that the customers may have been engaged in unregistered distributions, market manipulation or securities fraud.
In the case against Park Financial, FINRA found that during the period from September 2004 through April 2008, the firm’s clientele included several stock promoters and other individuals and entities with regulatory histories of securities-related violations such as stock fraud and manipulation. Many of these customers engaged in high-risk activities, such as depositing millions of shares of low-priced securities, generating millions of dollars in proceeds by liquidating the shares and wiring out the proceeds to offshore and domestic bank accounts. Other Park Financial customers had inflows of funds or other assets into their accounts that were well beyond their known income or financial resources. Park Financial, acting through Cantley, failed to establish and/or implement reasonable procedures to detect and report suspicious trading, failed to investigate any of the potentially suspicious transactions and failed to file Suspicious Activity Reports, as appropriate.

FINRA also found that Park Financial, acting through broker Farber, had engaged in the unregistered distribution of the securities of two issuers. In addition to imposing a fine, FINRA ordered the firm to retain an independent AML consultant to review its AML compliance program.

In a second action, FINRA found that J.P. Turner failed to detect, investigate and file Suspicious Activity Reports as appropriate for numerous potentially suspicious transactions. The suspicious activity included: multiple accounts under a single name or multiple names maintained by customers for no apparent business reason; and numerous transactions where large blocks of low-priced securities of companies with higher risk operating and financial histories were transferred into accounts, sold and the proceeds wired from the accounts. In several cases, the principals of these companies were the subjects of pending SEC actions alleging fraud and other securities law violations.

FINRA also named J.P. Turner’s former equity trader, McFarland, for failing to report to his firm suspicious transactions. Former Staten Island Branch Manager Meyer was named along with Bauman for their failures to adequately monitor and enforce special supervisory arrangements for the Staten Island branch.

In the third action, FINRA found that Legent Clearing’s AML program was not tailored to the firm’s business risks in that it did not adequately consider the money laundering risks posed by correspondent firms for which Legent provided securities clearing services. FINRA found that Legent failed to consider, among other things, that some of the correspondent or introducing firms had lengthy disciplinary histories and were conducting high-risk business activities such as significant penny-stock liquidations.

Even more problematic, Legent processed transactions for individual customers of its correspondent firms with red flags of suspicious activity, without fully investigating the transactions or filing a Suspicious Activity Report as appropriate. For instance, Legent processed transactions involving millions of shares of stock owned by company insiders or known penny stock promoters who had no evident legitimate business purpose for engaging in those transactions. Notably, Legent provided clearing services to introducing broker-dealers that FINRA has expelled from the securities industry for their own AML violations—Salomon Grey Financial in 2006 and Franklin Ross in 2007.
In settling these matters, J.P. Turner, Park Financial, Legent Clearing, Gordon Charles Cantley, John McFarland, David Farber, S. Cheryl Bauman and Robert Meyer neither admitted nor denied the charges, but consented to the entry of FINRA's findings.

Bauman’s suspension is in effect from July 6, 2009, through January 5, 2011. Meyer’s suspension was in effect from July 6, 2009, through August 5, 2009. Farber’s suspension was in effect from July 6, 2009, through August 4, 2009.

FINRA Fines Raymond James, RBC Capital Markets Corporation, Stock Loan Trader for Improper Stock Loan Practices

Firms Pay Total of $1.4 Million for Stock Loan Improprieties, Supervisory Deficiencies, Trader Suspended and Fined

The Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) announced that as part of its in-depth investigation of stock loan practices in the industry, it has imposed a fine of $1 million against Raymond James & Associates, Inc. of St. Petersburg, FL, and a fine of $400,000 against RBC Capital Markets Corporation of New York, for various stock loan improprieties.

Raymond James was sanctioned for making unjustified and improper payments to finder firms that provided no service in locating securities or had no involvement in the stock loan transaction for which they were paid. Raymond James and RBCCMC were both fined for using a non-registered individual, who had been convicted in federal court of securities law violations and had been barred from the securities industry by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), to perform stock loan functions requiring registration.

Benedict Patrick Tommasino, the head trader of RBCCMC’s Stock Loan Department was suspended for 20 months from working for a securities firm in any capacity, was suspended an additional two months from acting in a principal capacity and was fined $30,000 for his role in the misconduct.

“Finders for stock loan transactions can play an important role in the markets by assisting borrowers in locating securities, especially hard-to-borrow stocks,” said Susan Merrill, FINRA Executive Vice President and Chief of Enforcement. “But Raymond James traders made unjustified payments to finders who provided no service. Moreover, both firms exposed the market to the activities of an unqualified and unsupervised individual by allowing a non-registered person who had been barred from the securities industry to perform stock loan functions.”

During 2004, Raymond James, on various occasions paid finders in connection with stock loan transactions when there was no apparent justification for the finder payments.
For example, a review of stock loan transactions on four days in March and April 2004 revealed 11 transactions for which two finder firms were paid despite having performed no service, including one finder firm where a Raymond James stock loan trader’s son was an employee. In addition, Raymond James’s books and records inaccurately reflected that a finder had provided services in connection with certain stock loan transactions in exchange for payment when, in fact, the purported finder had not performed any function.

In 2004, Raymond James and RBCCMC each allowed Dennis Palmeri, Sr. of Shields Institutional, a non-registered finder, to perform stock loan functions requiring registration. In February 1994, Palmeri was convicted in federal court of aiding and abetting his then-employer’s violation of federal securities laws. The SEC then barred Palmeri from working for any broker dealer, investment advisor or investment company. The bar did not preclude Palmeri from acting as a non-registered finder, but does preclude him from performing functions requiring registration.

FINRA further found that these activities occurred because Raymond James and RBCCMC each failed to reasonably supervise the activities of their respective Stock Loan Departments.

In concluding these settlements, neither Raymond James, RBCCMC nor Tommasino admitted nor denied the charges, but consented to the entry of FINRA’s findings.

FINRA Fines ICAP $2.8 Million, Fines and Suspends Former Broker for Improper Communications with Other Interdealer Brokers About Customers’ Brokerage Rate Negotiations in Wholesale CDS Market

The Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) has fined ICAP Corporates LLC, of Jersey City, $2.8 million and sanctioned a former broker for numerous improper communications with other interdealer brokerage firms about customers’ proposed brokerage rate reductions in the wholesale credit default swap (CDS) market.

FINRA’s investigation into misconduct by the other interdealer brokerage firms and individuals involved is continuing.

Jennifer Joan James, a former ICAP broker and manager of ICAP’s CDS desk, was fined $350,000 and suspended from working in the securities industry in all capacities for six months for attempting to improperly influence other interdealer brokerage firms and their employees. ICAP was fined $1.8 million for its supervisory failures—specifically, failing to detect and prevent improper inter-firm communications—and $1 million for engaging in conduct through its CDS desk manager that was designed to improperly influence other firms and their employees.
“We continue to pursue conduct which undermines fundamental principles and rules upon which customers and free markets rely for efficient price discovery of brokerage rates,” said Tom Gira, Executive Vice President of FINRA’s Department of Market Regulation. “FINRA’s requirements to observe high standards of commercial honor and just and equitable principles of trade are designed to prevent the types of inter-firm communications that occurred in this case, which threaten the proper interaction of market forces regarding the pricing of brokerage rates.”

CDS instruments generally enable counterparties to purchase and sell “risk protection” associated with certain credit events (such as bankruptcies, defaults or credit downgrades in underlying instruments). The risk protection purchaser generally pays a periodic fee to the seller, and the seller agrees to pay the purchaser an agreed-upon amount should one of those credit events occur. Interdealer brokerage firms provide an intermediary brokerage service to commercial and investment banks in the wholesale markets to identify and match counterparties for such CDS transactions. The firm receives brokerage fees for successfully introducing buying and selling counterparties (its brokerage customers) but is not a party to the CDS transactions themselves.

FINRA found that James engaged in repeated improper communications with personnel at other interdealer brokerage firms that improperly attempted to influence those firms and individuals. These communications generally occurred after individual customer firms sought to renegotiate their CDS brokerage fees, sending schedules of proposed rate reductions separately to a number of individual interdealer brokers. James’s communications with personnel at other interdealer brokers included reactions to customers’ proposed rate reductions, statements concerning actual or contemplated interdealer broker responses or counter-positions to the customers’ proposed rate reductions, and discussions about the interdealer brokers creating identical or similar, individual counter proposals to rate reduction requests.

FINRA also found that while James’s communications typically involved one-to-one discussions with personnel from one other CDS interdealer brokerage firm, the communications frequently referred to similar discussions about the proposed fee-reduction schedules with additional interdealer brokerage firms.

ICAP and James settled these matters without admitting or denying the allegations, but consented to the entry of FINRA’s findings.

James’ suspension is in effect from July 6, 2009, through January 5, 2010.
FINRA Fines Merrill Lynch, UBS for Supervisory Failures in Sales of Closed-End Funds; Customers Get More Than $5 Million in Remediation

Five Merrill Brokers Suspended, Fined; Investigation of Former UBS Brokers Continues

The Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) has fined Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. $150,000 and UBS Financial Services, Inc. $100,000 for supervisory failures that led to unsuitable short-term sales of closed-end funds (CEF) purchased at the funds’ initial public offerings.

FINRA also suspended five Merrill Lynch brokers each for 15 days and fined them $10,000 for making unsuitable CEF recommendations to customers. FINRA’s investigation into the activities of former UBS brokers involved in the short-term sales of CEFs continues.

“Closed-end funds possess complex features that can give rise to unsuitability for short-term investors, particularly when purchased at the initial public offering,” said Susan Merrill, FINRA Executive Vice President and Chief of Enforcement. “Neither Merrill nor UBS had adequate supervisory systems and procedures to prevent brokers from engaging in unsuitable short-term sales of newly issued CEFs.”

CEFs are investment companies that sell a fixed number of shares in an initial public offering (IPO), subject to built-in sales charges. After the offering, the shares trade in the secondary market, typically at a discount from the initial offering price. The CEFs at issue had sales charges of 4.5 percent, as well as a “penalty bid period” of generally 30 to 90 days immediately following the IPO.

During this period, brokers would lose their sales commission if their clients sold the CEFs purchased at the offering. One regulatory concern related to CEFs is the potential for brokers to earn high fees at their customers’ expense by soliciting their customers to purchase CEFs at the IPO and then later, after the expiration of the penalty bid period, recommend that customers sell the CEFs, often at a loss, using the proceeds to purchase yet another CEF at an initial offering.

FINRA found that despite being aware that CEFs purchased at the IPO are more suitable for long-term investments—and that the sales charges applied to purchases at the IPO make short-term trading of these CEFs generally unsuitable—Merrill Lynch and UBS did not have adequate supervisory systems and procedures designed to detect and prevent unsuitable short-term trading of CEFs.

The firms also failed to provide supervisors with any guidance or warning about the potential abuses and disadvantages relating to short-term trading of CEFs purchased at the IPO. Without adequate guidance, branch managers were not on notice that there were potential problems with short-term sales of CEFs bought at the IPO.

FINRA also found that the firms failed to provide guidance or training to its registered persons regarding the impact of the sales charges on the short-term sales of CEFs purchased at the IPO. As a result, certain UBS and Merrill brokers recommended CEF purchases at the IPO and subsequent short-term sales without having a sufficient understanding of the effects that the sales charges and other pricing considerations had on the clients’ investments.
The five Merrill Lynch brokers sanctioned by FINRA for recommending the unsuitable short-term sales of CEFs are:

- Kenneth C. Iwelumo of the Newark, NJ, branch, who has been registered with Merrill Lynch since 1986. Iwelumo’s customers suffered losses totaling approximately $563,000.
- Ronald Kemp of the Denver, CO, branch, who has been registered with Merrill Lynch since 1997. Kemp’s customers suffered losses totaling approximately $411,000.
- Joseph Miller of the Springfield, MA, branch, who has been registered with Merrill Lynch since 1995. Miller’s customers suffered losses totaling approximately $130,000.
- John Ong of the New York City branch, who has been registered with Merrill Lynch since 1994. Ong’s customers suffered losses totaling approximately $350,000.
- Michael Kizman of the Schaumburg, IL, branch, who has been registered with Merrill Lynch since 1992. Kizman’s customers suffered losses totaling approximately $221,000.

In determining the appropriate sanctions against the firms, FINRA considered the firms’ remediation efforts, which included payments to customers in excess of $3 million by Merrill Lynch and more than $2 million by UBS. Also, FINRA considered the firms’ self-reviews and prompt remedial measures to correct systems and procedures to prevent future violations.

FINRA found in this matter that, after receiving an anonymous tip and before FINRA’s investigation into unsuitable short-term trading of CEFs, Merrill Lynch retained outside counsel to perform an internal investigation.
