To whom it may concern,

Full disclosure before we get started, I'm a share holder of AMC and have been since late January. Ignoring the media coordination like saying AMC isn't worth a penny or I wouldn't buy AMC stock with someone else's money, yes these headlines exist, there's something going on with AMC/GME and the longer the government turns the head the more future investors you turn away. 71% of volume was done in dark pools yesterday. 71% Allegations of hedge funds buying long shares in the dark pool and then selling in the market when it's beneficial for them. I've written to everyone I could about this with no response or action. It's quite amazing to me we could be so short sighted. Tell retail investors they are on their own. See what happens when we pull our money out and never return. I'm fine losing money as that is the risk, I'm not fine playing a game while the other guy cheats and the ref is busy with a crossword on the sidelines. As I'm sure this will fall on deaf ears as every other one has, I can at least look at myself in the mirror knowing I took the time to write these emails to aim the sunlight at the darkness. The ones who could do something chose to do nothing.

Thank you,
