As a person invested in the market I am concerned that many firms/institutions are not reporting actual numbers but are given the power to report on their own. This leaves manipulation as well as false numbers to be reported daily and hide actual position. This seems very contradicting to the purpose of an open market. The past two years I have seen volume and price movement that literally moves against normal logic. Nothing about a free market should be self reported. What is the point of a report then if the numbers are all willingly given predetermined by the reporting firm.
