Hi there,

There is blatant market manipulation with both stocks $GME and $AMC. Hedge funds are borrowing shares to push the price down and not buying the shares back. There are over 90 million of these shares in the market. The outflow today was less than the inflow yet the price still went down, it is so obvious it hurts. All I'm asking is you guys take a look and possibly trigger a margin call. I don't know what power you guys have but take a look into the interest rate, the amount of shares vs the price, the price of the stock compared to the volume every day. It's blatant and all I'm asking is you take a look as I'm a shareholder in $AMC and really like the stock/the theatres so I don't want to see this company be pushed into the dirt because hedge funds don't want market retailers to have a level playing field and make some money.

Thank you so much for your time.
