

Regarding: Regulatory Notice 09-06

If you want to truly do something positive for the Retail Forex investor/trader, then scrutinize brokers, and trade execution. As for protecting the individual from his/her own mistakes and recklessness, automatic liquidation when margin levels are reached, is one of the effective ways in managing risk and protecting the retail investor/trader. This feature already exists on most trading platforms. Imposing the limitation will only drive capital out of the U.S. Exactly what you do NOT want to happen. I'm already going to research safe oversees retail brokerage firms in the event this proposal is enacted.
