SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

Issuer Delisting; Notice of Application To Withdraw From Listing and Registration on the Pacific Exchange, Inc. (World Fuel Services Corporation, Common Stock, $.01 Par Value) File No. 1-9533

July 12, 2002.

World Fuel Services Corporation, a Florida corporation, ("Issuer"), has filed an application with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission"), pursuant to Section 12(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Act")¹ and Rule 12d2-2(d) thereunder,² to withdraw its Common Stock, $.01 par value ("Security"), from listing and registration on the Pacific Exchange, Inc. ("PCX" or "Exchange").

The Board of Directors ("Board") of the Issuer approved a resolution on May 30, 2001 to withdraw its Security from listing on the Exchange. The Board determined that the coverage provided by its current listing of the Security on the New York Stock Exchange, Inc. ("NYSE") was appropriate for its current and future needs, and it is not in the best interest of the Company to continue listing its Security on the PCX.

The Issuer stated in its application that it has complied with the rules of the PCX that govern the removal of securities from listing and registration on the Exchange. The Issuer's application relates solely to the Security's withdrawal from listing on the PCX and shall not affect its obligation to be registered under Section 12(b) the Act.³

Any interested person may, on or before August 2, 2002, submit by letter to the Secretary of the Securities and Exchange Commission, 450 Fifth Street, NW., Washington, DC 20549-0609, facts bearing upon whether the application has been made in accordance with the rules of the PCX and what terms, if any, should be imposed by the Commission for the protection of investors. The Commission, based on the information submitted to it, will issue an order granting the application after the date mentioned above, unless the Commission determines to order a hearing on the matter.

For the Commission, by the Division of Market Regulation, pursuant to delegated authority.⁴

1000. Membership, Registration and Qualification Requirements

1020. Registration of Principals

* * * * *

1022. Categories of Principal Registration

(a)–(e) No change.

(f) Registered Options and Security Futures Principals

(1) Every member of the Association [which] that is engaged in, or [which] that intends to engage in transactions in security futures or put or call options with the public shall have at least one Registered Options and Security Futures Principal who shall have satisfied the requirements of this subparagraph. As to options transactions, each [such] member shall also designate a Senior Registered Options Principal and a Compliance Registered Options Principal in accordance with the provisions of Rule 2860(b)(20) and identify such persons to the Association. [A member which has a Registered Options Principal qualified in either put or call options shall not engage in both put and call option transactions until such time as it has a Registered Options Principal qualified in both such options.] Every person engaged in the management of the day-to-day options or security futures activities of a member shall also be registered as a Registered Options and Security Futures Principal. [In the event any Registered Options Principal ceases to act in such capacity, such fact shall be reported promptly to the Association together with a brief statement of the reasons therefor.]

(2) Each person required by subparagraph (f)(1) [hereof] to be a Registered Options and Security Futures Principal shall pass the appropriate Qualification Examination for Registered Options and Security Futures Principal, or an equivalent examination acceptable to NASD [Corporation], for the purpose of demonstrating an adequate knowledge of options and security futures trading generally, the Rules of the Association applicable to trading of option and security futures contracts and the rules of registered clearing agencies for options and security futures [the Options Clearing Corporation], and be registered as such before engaging in the duties or accepting the responsibilities of a Registered Options and Security Futures Principal.

[(3) A person shall not qualify as a Registered Options Principal for both put and call options unless he has passed an examination testing him with respect to both put and call options.]

(3)[(4)] Each person required to register and qualify as a Registered Options and Security Futures Principal must, prior to or concurrent with such registration, be or become qualified pursuant to the Rule 1030 Series, as either a General Securities Representative or a Limited Representative—Corporate Securities and [also be or become qualified pursuant to Rule 1032(d) as] a Registered Options and Security Futures Representative.

(4)[(5)] A person registered solely as a Registered Options and Security Futures Principal shall not be qualified to function in a principal capacity with responsibility over any area of business activity not prescribed in subparagraph (1) [hereof].

(5)[(6)] Any person who is registered with NASD as a Registered Options and Security Futures Principal may not supervise security futures activities unless such person has, prior to December 31, 2006, completed a firm-element continuing education requirement that addresses security futures and a principal's responsibilities for security futures. After a revised examination that includes security futures products is offered, a person associated with a member that passes such a revised Qualification Examination for Registered Options and Security Futures Principal (or any other examination covering security futures that is acceptable to NASD) is not required to complete a firm-element continuing education requirement that addresses security futures and a principal's responsibilities for security futures to supervise activities in such products, except as otherwise required by Rule 1120 generally or by the member firm.

(g) Limited Principal—General Securities Sales Supervisor

(1)–(2) No change

(g)(3) Any person who is registered with NASD as a Limited Principal—General Securities Sales Supervisor may not act in a limited principal capacity with regard to security futures products unless such person has, prior to December 31, 2006, completed a firm-element continuing education requirement that addresses security futures and a principal's responsibilities for security futures. After a revised examination that includes security futures products is offered, a person associated with a member that passes such a revised Qualification Examination for Limited Principal—General Securities Sales Supervisor (or any other examination covering security futures that is acceptable to NASD) is not required to complete a firm-element continuing education requirement that addresses security futures and a principal's responsibilities for security futures to supervise such products, except as otherwise required by Rule 1120 generally or by the member firm.

IM-1022-1. Registered Options and Security Futures Principals

Members having a single Registered Options and Security Futures Principal are required promptly to notify the Association in the event such person is terminated, resigns, becomes incapacitated or is otherwise unable to perform the duties of an Options and Security Futures Principal.

Following receipt of such notification, the Association will require members to agree, in writing, to refrain from engaging in any options- or security futures-related activities [which] that would necessitate the prior or subsequent approval of an Options and Security Futures Principal including, among other things, the opening of new options or security futures accounts or the execution of discretionary orders for option or security futures contracts until such time as a new Registered Options and Security Futures Principal has been qualified.

Members failing to qualify a new Registered Options and Security Futures Principal within two weeks following the loss of their sole Registered Options and Security Futures Principal, or by the earliest available date for administration of the [Series 4] Registered Options and Security Futures Principal examination, whichever is longer, shall be required to cease doing an options and security futures business; provided, however, they may effect closing transactions in options and offsetting transactions in security futures [in order] to reduce or eliminate existing open options or security futures positions in their own account as well as the accounts of their customers.

IM-1022-2. Limited Principal—General Securities Sales Supervisor

Limited Principal—General Securities Sales Supervisor is an alternate category of registration designed to lessen the qualification burdens on principals of general securities firms who supervise sales. Without this category of limited registration, such principals could be required to separately qualify pursuant to the rules of the NASD, MSRB, NYSE and the options exchanges. While persons may continue to separately qualify with all relevant self-regulatory organizations, the Limited Principal—

General Securities Sales Supervisor Examination permits qualification as a supervisor of sales of all securities by one examination. Persons registered as Limited Principals—General Securities Sales Supervisor may also qualify in any other category of principal registration. Persons who are already qualified in one or more categories of principal registration may supervise sales activities of all securities by also qualifying as Limited Principals—General Securities Sales Supervisor.

Functions that may be performed by Limited Principals—General Securities Sales Supervisors. Any person required to be registered as a principal who supervises sales activities in corporate, municipal and option securities, investment company products, variable contracts, [and] direct participation programs, and security futures may be registered solely as a Limited Principal—General Securities [Sale] Sales Supervisor. In addition to branch office managers, other persons such as regional and national sales managers may also be registered solely as Limited Principals—General Securities Sales Supervisor as long as they supervise only sales activities. Qualification as a General Securities Representative is a prerequisite for registration as a Limited Principal—General Securities Sales Supervisor.

1032. Categories of Representative Registration

(a) General Securities Representative

(1) No change
 (2)(A)–(D) No change
 (2)(E) A person who is registered with NASD as a General Securities Representative may not act as a General Securities Representative with regard to security futures products unless such person has, prior to December 31, 2006, completed a firm-element continuing education requirement that addresses security futures products. After a new examination that includes security futures products is offered, a person associated with a member who passes such a revised Qualification Examination for General Securities Representative (or any other examination covering security futures that is acceptable to NASD) is not required to complete a firm-element continuing education requirement that addresses security futures to act as a General Securities Representative with regard to such products, except as otherwise required by Rule 1120 generally or by the member firm. Once the new examination that includes security futures becomes available, persons seeking to become a General Securities Representative will be required to pass such revised examination (or any other examination covering security futures that is acceptable to NASD) to act as a General Securities Representative with regard to security futures products. Only persons registered as a General Securities Representative prior to the time that the new examination is available, will be eligible to use a firm-element continuing education program in lieu of passing the revised examination or module to engage in a security futures business.

(a)(2)(E)–(I) Renumbered accordingly
 (a)(3) A person registered as a General Securities Representative shall not be qualified to function as a Registered Options and Security Futures Representative unless he or she is also qualified and registered as such pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (d) [hereof].

(b) and (c) No change

(d) Limited Representative—Options and Security Futures

(1) Each person associated with a member who is included within the definition of a representative as defined in Rule 1031 may register with the Association as a Limited Representative—Options and Security Futures if:

(A) such person's activities in the investment banking or securities business of the member involve the solicitation or sale of option or security futures contracts, including option contracts on government securities as that term is defined in Section 3(a)(42)(D) of the Act, for the account of a broker, dealer or public customer; and
 (B) such person passes an appropriate qualification examination for Limited Representative—Options and Security Futures.

(2) Each person seeking to register and qualify as a Limited Representative—Options and Security Futures must, concurrent with or before such registration may become effective, become registered pursuant to the Rule 1032 Series, either as a Limited Representative—Corporate Securities or Limited Representative—Government Securities.

(3) A person registered as a Limited Representative—Options and Security Futures shall not be qualified to function in any area not described in subparagraph (1)(A) [hereof].

(4) Any person who is registered with NASD as a Limited Representative—Options and Security Futures may not act as a limited representative with regard to security futures products unless such person has, prior to December 31, 2006, completed a firm-element continuing education requirement that addresses security futures. After a new examination that includes security futures products is offered, a person associated with a member who passes such a revised Qualification Examination for Limited Representative—Options and Security Futures (or any other examination covering security futures that is acceptable to NASD) is not required to complete a firm-element continuing education requirement that addresses security futures to act as a limited representative with regard to such products, except as otherwise required by Rule 1120 generally or by the member firm.

(e)–(h) No change

1060. Persons Exempt From Registration

* * * * *

(4) persons associated with a member whose functions are related solely and exclusively to:

(A) effecting transactions on the floor of a national securities exchange and who are registered as floor members of such exchange;

(B) transaction in municipal securities; [or]

(C) transactions in commodities; or

(D) transactions in security futures, provided that any such person is registered with a registered futures association.

* * * * *

IM-2110-3. Front Running Policy

* * * * *

(a) an order to buy or sell an option or a security future when such member or person associated with a member causing such order to be executed has material, non-public market information concerning an imminent block transaction in the underlying security, or when a customer has been provided such material, non-public market information by the member or any person associated with a member; or

(b) an order to buy or sell an underlying security when such member or person associated with a member causing such order to be executed has material, non-public market information concerning an imminent block transaction in an option or a security future overlying that security, or when a customer has been provided such material, non-public market information by the member or any person associated with a member; prior to the time information concerning the block transaction has been made publicly available.

* * * * *

These prohibitions also do not include situations in which a member or person associated with a member receives a customer's order of block size relating to both an option and the underlying security or both a security future and the underlying security. In such cases, the member and person associated with a member may position the other side of one or both components of the order. However, in these instances, the member and person associated with a member would not be able to cover any resulting proprietary position(s) by entering an offsetting order until information concerning the block transaction involved has been made publicly available.

The application of this front running policy is limited to transactions that are required to be reported on the last sale reporting systems administered by Nasdaq, Consolidated Tape Association (CTA), or Option Price Reporting Authority (OPRA). The front running policy also applies to security futures transactions regardless of whether such products are reported pursuant to such systems. Information as to a block transaction shall be considered to be publicly available when it has been disseminated via the tape or high speed communications line of one of those systems, a similar system of a national securities exchange under Section 6 of the Act, an alternative trading system under Regulation ATS, or by [of] a third-party news wire service.

A transaction involving 10,000 shares or more of an underlying security, or options or security futures covering such number of shares is generally deemed to be a block transaction, although a transaction of less than 10,000 shares could be considered a block transaction in appropriate cases. A block transaction that has been agreed upon does not lose its identity as such by arranging for partial executions of the full transaction in portions which themselves are not of block size if the execution of the full transaction may have a material impact on the market. In this situation, the requirement that information concerning the block transaction be made publicly available will not be satisfied until the entire block transaction has been completed and publicly reported.

(b) Approval and Recordkeeping

(1) Each item of advertising and sales literature shall be approved by signature or initial, prior to use or filing with the Association, by a registered principal of the member. This requirement may be met, only with respect to corporate debt and equity securities that are the subject of research reports as the term is defined in Rule 472 of the New York Stock Exchange, by the signature or initial of a supervisory analyst approved pursuant to Rule 344 of the New York Stock Exchange. This requirement may be met, only with respect to advertising and sales literature concerning security futures, by the signature or initial of a Registered Options and Security Futures Principal.

(b)(2) and (c)(1) No change

(c)(2) Advertisements concerning collateralized mortgage obligations, advertisements concerning security futures, and advertisements and sales literature concerning registered investment companies (including mutual funds, variable contracts and unit investment trusts) that include or incorporate rankings or comparisons of the investment company with other investment companies where the ranking or comparison category is not generally published or is the creation, either directly or indirectly, of the investment company, its underwriter or an affiliate, shall be filed with the Department for review at least 10 days prior to use (or such shorter period as the Department may allow in particular circumstances) for approval and, if changed by the Association, shall be withheld from publication or circulation until any changes specified by the Association have been made or, if expressly disapproved, until the advertisement has been refiled for, and has received, Association approval. The member must provide with each filing the actual or anticipated date of first use. Any member filing any investment company advertisement or sales literature pursuant to this paragraph shall include a copy of the data, ranking or comparison on which the ranking or comparison is based.

(B)(i)b. that the member and/or its officers or partners own options, security futures, rights or warrants to purchase any of the securities of the issuer whose securities are recommended, unless the extent of such ownership is nominal;

IM-2210-7. Guidelines for Communications with the Public Regarding Security Futures

(a) Association Approval Requirements and Review Procedures

(1) As set forth in paragraph (c)(2) of Rule 2210, all advertisements concerning security futures shall be submitted to the Advertising/Investment Companies Regulation Department of NASD at least ten days prior to use for approval and, if changed by NASD, shall be withheld from circulation until any changes specified by NASD have been made or, in the event of disapproval, until the advertisement has been refiled for, and has received, Association approval.

(2) The requirements of this paragraph (a) shall not be applicable to:

(A) advertisements submitted to another self-regulatory organization having comparable standards pertaining to such advertisements, and

(B) advertisements in which the only reference to security futures is contained in a listing of the services of a member organization.

(b) Disclosure Statement

(1) All communications concerning security futures shall be accompanied or preceded by the security futures risk disclosure statement unless they meet the following requirements:

(A) Such communications shall be limited to general descriptions of the security futures being offered.

(B) Such communications shall contain contact information for obtaining a copy of the security futures risk disclosure statement.

(C) Such communications shall not contain recommendations or past or projected performance figures, including annualized rates of return.

(2) Communications concerning security futures that meet the requirements of subparagraph (1) may have the following characteristics:

(A) the text of the communication may contain a brief description of security futures, including a statement that identifies registered clearing agencies for security futures. The text may also contain a brief description of the general attributes and method of operation of the security exchange or notice-registered securities exchange on which such security futures are traded, including a discussion of how a security future is priced;

(B) the communication may include any statement required by any state law or administrative authority; and

(C) advertising designs and devices, including borders, scrolls, arrows, pointers, multiple and combined logos and unusual type faces and lettering as well as attention-getting headlines and photographs and other graphics may be used, provided such material is not misleading.

(c) Recordkeeping

Consistent with paragraph (b)(2) of Rule 2210, a member shall keep a separate file of all advertisements and sales literature concerning security futures, including the name(s) of the person(s) who prepared them and approved their use for a period of three years from the date of each use. In addition, members shall meet the same recordkeeping requirements for all correspondence concerning security futures. In the case of sales literature concerning security futures, a member shall record the source of any recommendation contained therein.

(d) Specific Standards

(1) The special risks attendant to security futures transactions and the complexities of certain security futures investment strategies shall be reflected in any communications that discuss the uses or advantages of security futures. Any statement referring to the potential opportunities or advantages presented by security futures shall be balanced by a statement of the corresponding risks. The risk statement shall reflect the same degree of specificity as the statement of opportunities, and broad generalities should be avoided.

(2) Security futures communications shall include a warning to the effect that security futures are not suitable for all investors and such communications shall not contain suggestions to the contrary.

(3) Security futures communications shall state that supporting documentation for any claims (including any claims made on behalf of security futures programs or the security futures expertise of sales persons), comparisons, recommendations, statistics or other technical data, will be supplied upon request.

(4) No cautionary statements or caveats, often called hedge clauses, may be used in communications with the public if they are not legible, are misleading, or are inconsistent with the content of the material.

(5) Statements suggesting the certain availability of a secondary market for security futures shall not be made.

(e) Projections

Notwithstanding the provisions of Rule 2210(d)(2)(N), security futures sales literature and correspondence may contain projected performance figures (including projected annualized rates of return), provided that:

(1) all such sales literature and correspondence must be accompanied or preceded by the security futures risk disclosure statement;

(2) no suggestion of certainty of future performance is made;

(3) parameters relating to such performance figures are clearly established;

(4) all relevant costs, including commissions, fees, and interest charges (as applicable) are disclosed and reflected in the projections;

(5) such projections are plausible and are intended as a source of reference or a comparative device to be used in the development of a recommendation;

(6) all material assumptions made in such calculations are clearly identified;

(7) the risks involved in the proposed transactions are also disclosed; and

(8) in communications relating to annualized rates of return, that such returns are not based upon any less than a sixty-day experience; any formulas used in making calculations are clearly displayed; and a statement is included to the effect that the annualized returns cited might be achieved only if the parameters described can be duplicated and that there is no certainty of doing so.

(f) Historical Performance

Security futures sales literature and correspondence may feature records and statistics that portray the performance of past recommendations or of actual transactions, provided that:

(1) all such sales literature and correspondence must be accompanied or preceded by the security futures risk disclosure statement;

(2) any such portrayal is done in a balanced manner, and consists of records or statistics that are confined to a specific "universe" that can be fully isolated and circumscribed and that covers at least the most recent 12-month period;

(3) such communications include the date of each initial recommendation or transaction, the price of each such recommendation or transaction as of such date, and the date and price of each recommendation or transaction at the end of the period or when liquidation was suggested or effected, whichever was earlier; provided that if the communications are limited to summarized or averaged records or statistics, in lieu of the complete record there may be included the number of items recommended or transacted, the number that advanced and the number that declined, together with an offer to provide the complete record upon request;

(4) such communications disclose all relevant costs, including commissions, fees, and daily margin obligations (as applicable);

(5) whenever such communications contain annualized rates of return, such communications shall disclose all material assumptions used in the process of annualization;

(6) an indication is provided of the general market conditions during the period(s) covered, and any comparison made between such records and statistics and the overall market (e.g., comparison to an index) is valid;

(7) such communications state that the results presented should not and cannot be viewed as an indicator of future performance; and

(8) a principal qualified to supervise security futures activities determines that the records or statistics fairly present the status of the recommendations or transactions reported upon and so initials the report.

(g) Security Futures Programs

In communications regarding a security futures program (i.e., an investment plan employing the systematic use of one or more security futures strategies), the cumulative history or unproven nature of the program and its underlying assumptions shall be disclosed.

(h) Standard Forms of Worksheets

Such worksheets must be uniform within a member firm. If a member has adopted a standard form of worksheet for a particular security futures strategy, nonstandard worksheets for that strategy may not be used.

(i) Recordkeeping

Communications that portray performance of past recommendations or actual transactions and completed worksheets shall be kept at a place easily accessible to the sales office for the accounts or customers involved.

(B) Paragraphs (12) and (15) shall apply only to security futures carried in securities accounts.

(C) Except to the extent that specific provisions in this Rule govern, or unless the context otherwise requires, the provisions of the By-Laws and Rules and all other interpretations and policies of the Board of Governors shall also be applicable to the trading of security futures.

(3)–(7) Reserved

(8) Restrictions on Security Futures Transactions

NASD may impose from time to time such restrictions on security futures transactions that it determines are necessary in the interest of maintaining a fair and orderly market in security futures, or in the underlying securities

(11) Delivery of Security Futures Risk Disclosure Statement

(A) Every member shall deliver the current security futures risk disclosure statement to each customer at or prior to the time such customer's account is approved for trading security futures. Thereafter, each new or revised security futures risk disclosure statement shall be distributed to every customer having an account approved for such trading or, in the alternative, shall be distributed not later than the time a confirmation of a transaction is delivered to each customer who enters into a security futures transaction. NASD will advise members when a new or revised current security futures risk disclosure statement is available.

(C) Where an introducing broker or dealer enters orders for its customers with, or clears transactions through, a member on a fully disclosed basis and that member carries the accounts of such customers, the responsibility for delivering the current security futures risk disclosure statement as provided in this paragraph (b)(11) shall rest with the member carrying the accounts. However, such member may rely upon the good faith representation of the introducing broker or dealer that the current security futures risk disclosure statement has been delivered in compliance with paragraph (b)(11).

(12) Confirmations

Every member shall promptly furnish to each customer a written confirmation of each transaction in security futures for such customer's account. Each such confirmation shall show the market on which the security futures position was executed, whether the security futures position is a long or short position, the underlying security or narrow-based index, the expiration date, the quantity of the underlying security or narrow-based index, the number of security futures contracts, the amount of initial and maintenance margin required, the commission, the trade and settlement dates, whether the transaction was a purchase or a sale transaction, whether the transaction was an opening or offsetting transaction, and whether the transaction was effected on a principal or agency basis.

(13)–(14) Reserved

(15) Statements of Account

(A) Statements of account showing security and money positions, entries, interest charges, and any special charges that have been assessed against such account during the period covered by the statement shall be sent no less frequently than once every month to each customer in whose account there has been an entry during the preceding month with respect to a security futures contract and quarterly to all customers having an open security futures position or money balance. Interest charges and any special charges assessed during the period covered by the statement need not be specifically delineated if they are otherwise accounted for on the statement and have been itemized on transaction confirmations. With respect to security futures customers having a general (margin) account, such statements shall also provide the mark-to-market price and market value of each security futures position and other security positions in the general (margin) account, the total market value of all positions in the account, the outstanding debit or credit balance in the account, and the general (margin) account equity. The statements shall bear a legend stating that further information with respect to commissions and other charges related to the execution of security futures transactions has been included in confirmations of such transactions previously furnished to the customer, and that such information will be made available to the customer promptly upon request. The statements shall also bear a legend requesting the customer promptly to advise the member of any material change in the customer's investment objectives or financial situation.

(B) For purposes of this subparagraph (15), general (margin) account equity shall be computed by subtracting the total of the "short" security values and any debit balance from the total of the "long" security values and any credit balance.

(16) Opening of Accounts

(A) Approval Required

No member or person associated with a member shall accept an order from a customer to purchase or sell a security future, or approve the customer's account for the trading of security futures, unless the broker or dealer furnishes or has furnished to the customer the appropriate security futures risk disclosure statement and the customer's account has been approved for security futures trading in accordance with the provisions of subparagraphs (B) through (D) hereof.

(B) Diligence in Opening Accounts

In approving a customer's account for security futures trading, a member or any person associated with a member shall exercise due diligence to ascertain the essential facts relative to the customer, the customer's financial situation and investment objectives. Members shall establish specific minimum net equity requirements for initial approval and maintenance of customers' security futures accounts. Based upon such information, a principal qualified to supervise security futures activities shall specifically approve or disapprove in writing the customer's account for security futures trading. For account approvals, the written record shall include the reasons for approval.

(i) With respect to security futures customers who are natural persons, members shall seek to obtain the following information at a minimum (information shall be obtained for all participants in a joint account):

- a. Investment objectives (e.g., safety of principal, income, growth, trading profits, or speculation);
- b. Employment status (name of employer, self-employed, or retired);
- c. Estimated annual income from all sources;
- d. Estimated net worth (exclusive of family residence);
- e. Estimated liquid net worth (cash, securities, or other);
- f. Marital status and number of dependents;
- g. Age; and,
- h. Investment experience and knowledge (e.g., number of years, size, frequency and type of transactions) for futures, commodities, options, stocks, bonds, and other financial instruments.

(ii) In addition, a customer's account records shall contain the following information, if applicable:

- a. Source or sources of background and financial information (including estimates) concerning the customer;
- b. Discretionary authorization agreement on file, name, relationship to customer, and experience of person holding trading authority;
- c. Date disclosure document(s) furnished to customer;
- d. Name of registered representative;
- e. Name of principal approving account and date of approval; and

f. Dates of verification of currency of account information.

(iii) Members should consider using a standard account approval form to ensure the receipt of all the required information.

(iv) Refusal of a customer to provide any of the information specified in subparagraph (i) shall be so noted on the customer's records at the time the account is opened. Information provided shall be considered together with the other information available in determining whether to approve the account for security futures trading.

(v) A record of the information obtained pursuant to this subparagraph (B) and of the approval or disapproval of each account shall be maintained by the member as part of its records in accordance with paragraph (b)(17) herein.

(C) Verification of Customer Background and Financial Information

For every natural person whose account has been approved for security futures trading, the background and financial information upon which the account was approved shall be sent to the customer for verification within fifteen days (15) after the customer's account has been approved for security futures trading. This verification requirement shall not apply if the background and financial information is included in the customer's account agreement or if the member has previously verified the customer's information in connection with an options account. A copy of the background and financial information on file with a member also shall be sent to the customer for verification within fifteen (15) days after the member becomes aware of any material change in the customer's financial situation.

Members shall satisfy the initial and subsequent verification of customer background and financial information by sending to the customer the information required in paragraph (B)(i)(a) through (i)(f) hereof, as contained in the member's records and providing the customer with an opportunity to correct or complete the information. In all cases, absent advice from the customer to the contrary, the information will be deemed to be verified.

(D) Account Agreement

Within fifteen (15) days after a customer's account has been approved for security futures trading, a member shall obtain from the customer a written agreement that the customer is aware of and agrees to be bound by the Rules of NASD applicable to the trading of security futures and, that the customer has received a copy of the current security futures risk disclosure statement. In addition, the customer should indicate on such written agreement that the customer is aware of and agrees not to violate applicable security futures position limits.

(17) Maintenance of Records

(A) In addition to the requirements of Rule 3110, every member shall maintain and keep current a separate central log, index, or other file for all security futures-related complaints, through which these complaints can easily be identified and retrieved. The central file shall be located at the principal place of business of the member or such other principal office as shall be designated by the member. At a minimum, the central file shall include: (i) identification of complainant; (ii) date complaint was received; (iii) identification of registered representative servicing the account; (iv) a general description of the matter complained of; and (v) a record of what action, if any, has been taken by the member with respect to the complaint. For purposes of this subparagraph, the term "security futures-related complaint" shall mean any written statement by a customer or person acting on behalf of a customer alleging a grievance arising out of or in connection with security futures. Each security futures-related complaint received by a branch office of a member shall be forwarded to the office in which the separate, central file is located not later than 30 days after receipt by the branch office that is the subject of the complaint. A copy of every security futures-related complaint shall also be maintained at the branch office that is the subject of the complaint.

(B) Background and financial information of customers who have been approved for security futures trading shall be maintained at both the branch office servicing the customer's account and the principal supervisory office having jurisdiction over that branch office. Copies of account statements of security futures customers shall also be maintained at both the branch office supervising the accounts and the principal supervisory office having jurisdiction over that branch for the most recent six-month period. With respect solely to the above-noted record retention requirements applicable to principal supervisory offices, however, the customer information and account statements may be maintained at a location other than the principal supervisory office if such documents and information are readily accessible and promptly retrievable. Other records necessary to the proper supervision of accounts shall be maintained at a place easily accessible both to the branch office servicing the customer's account and to the principal supervisory office having jurisdiction over that branch office.

(18) Discretionary Accounts

(A) Authorization and Approval

(i) No member or person associated with a member shall exercise any discretionary power with respect to trading in security futures in a customer's account, or accept orders for security futures for an account from a person other than the customer, except in compliance with the provisions of Rule 2510 and unless:

a. The written authorization of the customer required by Rule 2510 shall specifically authorize security futures trading in the account; and

b. the account shall have been accepted in writing by a principal qualified to supervise security futures activities.

(ii) When analyzing an account to determine if it should be approved for security futures trading, a principal qualified to supervise security futures activities shall have a reasonable basis for believing that the customer was able to understand and bear the risk of the strategies or transactions proposed, and shall maintain a record of the basis for such determination. Each discretionary order shall be approved and initialed on the day entered by the branch office manager or other principal qualified to supervise security futures activities, provided that if the branch officer is not a principal qualified to supervise security futures activities, such approval shall be confirmed within a reasonable time by a principal qualified to supervise security futures activities. Each discretionary order shall be identified as discretionary on the order at the time of entry. Discretionary accounts shall receive frequent appropriate supervisory review. The provisions of this subparagraph (18) shall not apply to discretion as to the price at which or the time when an order given by a customer for the purchase or sale of a definite number of security futures contracts in a specified security shall be executed.

(B) Record of Transactions

A record shall be made of every transaction in security futures contracts in respect to which a member or person has exercised discretionary authority, clearly reflecting such fact and indicating the name of the customer, the designation and number of the security futures contracts, the price of the contract, and the date and time when such transaction was effected.

(C) Security Futures Programs

Where the discretionary account uses security futures programs involving the systematic use of one or more security futures strategies, the customer shall be furnished with a written explanation of the nature and risks of such programs.

(19) Suitability

(A) No member or person associated with a member shall recommend to any customer any transaction or trading strategy for the purchase or sale of a security future unless such member or person associated with the member has reasonable grounds to believe upon the basis of information furnished by the customer after reasonable inquiry by the member or person associated with the member concerning the customer's investment objectives, financial situation and needs, and any other information known by the member or associated person, that the recommended transaction or trading strategy is not unsuitable for the customer.

(B) No member or person associated with a member shall recommend to a customer a transaction in any security future unless the person making the recommendation has a reasonable basis for believing, at the time of making the recommendation, that the customer has such knowledge and experience in financial matters that the customer may reasonably be expected to be capable of evaluating the risks of the recommended transaction, and is financially able to bear the risks of the recommended position in the security future.

(20) Reserved

(21) Violation of By-Laws and Rules of NASD or a Registered Clearing Agency

(A) In Association disciplinary proceedings, a finding of violation of any provision of the rules, regulations, or by-laws of a registered clearing agency under Section 17A(b)(8) of the Act by any member or person associated with a member engaged in security futures transactions cleared by such registered clearing agency, may be deemed to be conduct inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trade and a violation of Rule 2110.

(B) In Association disciplinary proceedings, a finding of violation of any provision of the Rules, regulations or By-Laws of NASD by any member or person associated with a member engaged in security futures transactions may be deemed to be conduct inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trade and a violation of Rule 2110.

(24) Security Futures Transactions and Reports by Market Makers in Listed Securities

Every member that is an off-board market maker in a security listed on a national securities exchange shall report to NASD in accordance with such procedures as may be prescribed by the Board of Governors, transactions involving 50 or more security futures contracts on such listed securities that are either directly for the benefit of (A) the member or (B) any employee, partner, officer, or director of the member who, by virtue of his or her position with the member, is directly involved in the purchase or sale of the underlying security for the firm's proprietary account(s) or is directly responsible for supervision of such persons; or who by virtue of his or her position in the firm, is authorized to, and regularly does, obtain information on the proprietary account(s) of the member in which the underlying security is traded. This subparagraph shall apply to all security futures transactions including those executed on an exchange to which the member may belong.

(25) Trading Ahead of Customer Orders

Every member shall exercise due care to avoid trading ahead of a customer's security futures order. A member must exercise the due care required by this subsection when the member has gained knowledge of or reasonably should have gained knowledge of the customer's order prior to the transmission to a securities exchange of the member's order for a proprietary account, or for any account in which it or any person associated with it is directly or indirectly interested.

II. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement Of the Purpose Of, and Statutory Basis For, the Proposed Rule Change

In its filing with the Commission, NASD included statements concerning the purpose of and basis for the proposed rule change and discussed any comments it received on the proposed rule change. The text of these statements may be examined at the places specified in Item IV below. NASD has prepared summaries, set forth in Sections A, B, and C below, of the most significant aspects of such statements.

A. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement of the Purpose of, and Statutory Basis for, the Proposed Rule Change

1. Purpose

The Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000 ("CFMA")

authorizes the trading of futures on individual stocks and narrow-based stock indices. Under the CFMA, security futures are defined as "securities" under section 3(a)(10) of the Exchange Act. As a result, NASD is modifying existing rules that cover securities and developing new rules to accommodate these new securities products.⁵

The regulatory framework established by the CFMA for the markets and intermediaries trading security futures provides the SEC and Commodity Futures Trading Commission ("CFTC") with joint jurisdiction. Broker/dealers that wish to conduct a business in security futures are required to notice register as Futures Commission Merchants ("FCMs") or Introducing Brokers ("IBs") with the CFTC.⁶ Similarly, FCMs and IBs that wish to conduct a business in security futures are required to notice register as broker/dealers with the SEC.⁷ FCMs and IBs that are notice-registered with the SEC do not, however, need to become members of NASD. NASD's proposed rules on security futures apply only to NASD members.

a. Security Futures Rule

One of the underpinnings of the CFMA is that the regulation of security futures should be comparable to the regulation of options.⁸ NASD and the National Futures Association ("NFA")⁹ are required under the CFMA to develop rules regulating activity in security futures.¹⁰

⁵ NASD also has filed a proposed rule change to add NASD Rule 3115 and to amend NASD Rule 3340 to establish record-keeping requirements for Alternative Trading Systems ("ATSs") that trade security futures, and to require ATSs to coordinate trading halts with markets trading the underlying securities and markets trading related securities. (SR-NASD-2001-47). See Securities Exchange Act Release No. 44623 (July 30, 2001), 66 FR 41076 (August 6, 2001).

⁶ 66 FR 43227 (August 17, 2001).

⁷ Securities Exchange Act Release No. 44730 (August 21, 2001), 66 FR 45138 (August 27, 2001).

⁸ For example, the CFMA establishes that margin requirements for security futures be consistent with comparable option contracts and that listing standards for security futures be no less restrictive than comparable listing standards for options traded on a national securities exchange or a national securities association. See Sections 7(c)(2) and 6(h)(3)(C) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. 78g(c)(2), 78f(h)(3)(C).

⁹ The NFA is currently the only registered futures association under the Commodity Exchange Act ("CEA"). Under the CFMA, the NFA, as a registered futures association is a limited-purpose national securities association. The function of a limited-purpose national securities association is limited to carrying out the purposes of the securities laws applicable to securities futures and to regulating the activities of its members that have notice-registered with the SEC to trade security futures. See Section 15A(k) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. 78o-3(k).

¹⁰ Sales practice rules for security futures, and specifically the suitability rule, are subject to the

The proposed securities futures rule, Rule 2865, is based principally upon NASD's options rule, Rule 2860.¹¹ For purposes of clarity, NASD has styled the rule as a separate, stand-alone rule from its options rule; however, to facilitate compliance by member firms that are familiar with NASD's options rule, NASD has maintained the same structure and, where possible, much of the same rule text.

In reviewing NASD's options rule and the security futures rules of the NFA, NASD determined that it was not necessary to replicate every provision in the options rules for security futures. Certain concepts for options are not relevant for security futures. For example, provisions pertaining to the "exercise" of options were not carried forward into the security futures rule because security futures are not "exercised" as options are. NASD also has eliminated sections pertaining to "Transactions with Issuers" and "Restricted Stock," and have not included provisions concerning position limits and the reporting of security futures positions, which will instead be addressed by each exchange or market trading security futures, as appropriate.

NASD's security futures rule applies to all NASD member firms. Many of these members will be broker/dealers that notice register with the CFTC as an FCM or IB. Other members will be fully registered with both the SEC and CFTC ("fully registered firms"). In a joint notice of proposed rulemaking,¹² the SEC and CFTC requested comment on whether the application of the customer account statement and confirmation rules should depend on the type of account in which security futures are held (e.g., in a securities account at a broker/dealer, or a futures account at an FCM).¹³ The proposed rule change adopts what appears to be the resolution of this issue—namely, that the customer account statement and confirmation CFMA's requirement that the NFA's rules on these subjects be reasonably comparable to NASD's rules. Section 15A(k)(2)(B)(i) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. 78o-3(k)(2)(B)(i). NASD believes that it is important for NASD's and the NFA's rules to be comparable in these areas.

¹¹ The Commission published a group of new NFA rules and amendments to NFA rules governing security futures on September 27, 2001. See Securities Exchange Act Release No. 44823 (September 20, 2001), 66 FR 49439 (September 27, 2001). The NFA's rules also were modeled after NASD's options rules. In developing NASD's security futures rule, we have sought to adopt requirements that are consistent with those of the NFA to avoid regulatory disparity between firms subject to the jurisdiction of the NFA and NASD.

¹² Securities Exchange Act Release No. 44854 (September 25, 2001), 66 FR 50768 (October 4, 2001).

rules will apply based upon the type of account used for the security futures. Thus, the paragraphs of the security futures rule pertaining to customer account statements and confirmations apply only to security futures held in securities accounts. Fully registered firms that hold security futures in an FCM account would follow the rules of the CFTC addressing customer account statements and confirmations.

Liquidation of Positions and Restrictions on Access

NASD proposes provisions on liquidation of positions and restrictions on access that are substantively similar to those in NASD's options rule.

Restrictions on Security Futures Transactions

NASD proposes restrictions on security futures transactions that are substantively similar to those in NASD's options rule.

Delivery of Security Futures Risk Disclosure Statement

The proposed rule change requires every member to deliver the security futures risk disclosure statement to each customer at or prior to the time such customer's account is approved for trading security futures. In general, the requirements for delivery of the security futures risk disclosure statement are comparable to the requirements for the delivery of the options disclosure document. The security futures risk disclosure statement will discuss the risks of security futures; will describe how security futures trade; and will address margin for security futures, effects of leverage, settlement procedures, customer account protections, and tax consequences.

Confirmations

The proposed rule change requires each member promptly to furnish each customer with a written confirmation of each security futures transaction. The proposed rule change also specifies the items that must be included on the confirmation. In general, the provisions addressing confirmations of security futures transactions are comparable to the provisions currently in place for options.

Discretionary Accounts

The proposed rule change adopts discretionary account procedures for security futures that are comparable to those for options. Notably, as with options, the procedures require that the written authorization of the customer required by NASD Rule 2510 specifically authorize security futures trading in the account. The implication of this requirement is that all discretionary accounts, even those that are permitted to trade options, cannot trade security futures unless a new written discretionary account authorization specifically authorizing trading of security futures is on file. Although there are many similarities between options and security futures, NASD does not believe that existing discretionary account authorizations should be expanded to include these new products. While NASD recognizes requiring new discretionary account forms specifically authorizing trading in security futures may be of some burden to firms, NASD believes that customer protections achieved by such a requirement outweigh the burden. NASD notes that the NFA does not require discretionary accounts to have specific written authorization to trade security futures; however, NASD also notes that the discretionary accounts under the NFA's jurisdiction are already specifically authorized to trade other types of futures.

Statements of Account

The proposed rule change requires members to deliver a customer account statement no less frequently than each month where there has been an entry during the preceding month with respect to a security futures contract and quarterly to all customers that have an open security futures position or money balance. The proposed customer account statement provision is comparable to the existing provision for options.

Opening of Accounts

NASD proposes an account opening rule that contains specific procedures that a member must follow to approve a customer account to trade security futures. These procedures include review by an appropriately qualified principal (a Registered Options and Security Futures Principal or a Limited Principal—General Securities Sales Supervisor), specific guidance as to what information the member must ask the customer to provide, and a requirement for the member to furnish its customer with the security futures risk disclosure statement at or before the time that the member accepts an order from the customer to purchase or sell a security future. These account-opening procedures are similar to existing procedures for options.

Suitability

The proposed rule change includes a suitability rule that employs a heightened suitability standard that is similar to NASD's suitability standard for options.¹⁴ This heightened standard recognizes that security futures carry a higher degree of risk to a customer than many other securities products. Specifically, under the proposed rule change, if an associated person recommends a security futures transaction, the proposed suitability rule imposes the additional requirement that the associated person have a reasonable basis for believing "that the customer has such knowledge and experience in financial matters that the customer may reasonably be expected to be capable of evaluating the risks of the recommended transaction, and is financially able to bear the risks of the recommended position in the security future."¹⁵ NASD believes that the proposed suitability rule will require associated persons of broker/dealers to consider carefully whether to recommend a security futures transaction to a customer. In addition, NASD has expanded the security futures suitability standard to address trading strategies as well as individual trades. The expansion of the suitability standard to include a recommended "trading strategy" makes the proposed rule change consistent with the suitability standard for security futures adopted by the NFA.¹⁶

Security Futures Transactions and Reports by Market Makers in Listed Securities

NASD proposes a provision addressing security futures transactions and reports by market makers in listed securities that is comparable to the existing provision for options. This provision requires members that are off-board market makers in securities listed on a national securities exchange to regularly report security futures transactions involving 50 or more contracts on such listed securities that are for the benefit of a member that is an off-board market maker in such securities or are for the benefit of certain associated persons of such a member.

Trading Ahead

The proposed rule change requires members to exercise due care to avoid trading ahead of customer orders in the same security futures contract. The proposed provision imposes an obligation on members not to trade ahead of customer security futures orders in a proprietary account or in any account in which the member or an associated person has an interest. The prohibition against trading ahead applies only to customer orders of which the member is aware or reasonably should be aware.

This provision is based on the NFA's Interpretive Notice regarding obligations to customers and other market participants.¹⁷ The NFA's Interpretive Notice gives two examples of when a firm would reasonably not be aware of a customer's order: (1) When a customer's order originates in a different branch office than the firm's proprietary order, and (2) when the firm's trading department does not have access to information about customer orders. NASD believes that these two situations are also examples of when a firm would not violate the proposed NASD rule. Moreover, these two examples are not exhaustive. NASD anticipates that there are additional situations in which a firm reasonably would not be aware of a customer's order and therefore the firm would not violate the rule if it transmits a proprietary order to a securities exchange before a customer's order. NASD cannot enumerate all such situations at this time because, among other things, they may depend on the trading rules of a securities exchange that trades security futures.

b. Advertising Rule for Security Futures

NASD proposes amendments to the rule governing communications with the public, Rule 2210 ("Advertising Rule") to address security futures. The amendments, which are primarily contained in proposed Interpretive Material, establish advertising standards that are similar but not identical to the standards for options. The proposed rule change bases the security futures advertising provisions on the general advertising rule because NASD believes it will be easier for members to follow a modification of the general advertising rule rather than referring to a stand-alone security futures advertising rule.

Contrary to the requirement that a principal approves advertisements and sales literature under Rule 2210(b), however, the proposed rule specifies that advertisements and sales literature concerning security futures must be approved by a Registered Options and Security Futures Principal (Series 4). In particular, a General Securities Principal (Series 24) is not authorized to approve advertisements and sales literature concerning security futures.

¹⁴ See NASD Rule 2860(b)(19). In addition, we propose to add a cross-reference in the Fair Dealing with Customers Interpretive Material, IM-2310-2, which relates to NASD's suitability rule. The cross-reference will refer readers to the suitability provision of NASD's new security futures rule.

¹⁵ See Proposed NASD Rule 2860(b)(19).

The proposed rule contains a pre-use filing requirement for advertisements concerning security futures.¹⁸ As with the pre-use filing requirements for options communications, a member must file its security futures advertisements with NASD's Advertising/Investment Companies Regulation Department ("Department") at least 10 days before the member can use the communication.¹⁹ Under the proposed rule change, the Department will review the advertisement and will either approve it, disapprove it, or specify changes that the firm must make to use the communication.

The proposed rule restricts the content of communications, which includes advertisements, sales literature, and correspondence that are not accompanied or preceded by the security futures risk disclosure statement. Such communications may not contain statements of historical performance or projections. In addition, communications must be limited to general descriptions of security futures. These restrictions are similar to the advertising restrictions for options.

The proposed rule requires three specific disclosures about security futures. First, if the communication refers to the potential advantages of security futures, the communication must balance the mention of advantages with a reference, in the same degree of specificity, about the corresponding risks. This requirement of a closely balanced presentation of advantages and risks is a more exacting standard than is contained in NASD's general standard for communications with the public, which prohibits exaggerated, unwarranted, or misleading statements. See NASD Rule 2210(d)(1)(B). Second, the communication must include a warning that security futures are not suitable for all investors. NASD believes that the riskiness of security futures and the high leverage involved in these products makes security futures unsuitable for many investors. Third, the proposed rule requires that communications state that, upon request, the firm will provide documents that support any claims, comparisons, recommendations, statistics, or other technical data used in the communication. All three of these disclosure requirements are similar to the requirements for options communications.²⁰

Because security futures communications will be subject to NASD's general advertising rule, several general and specific standards will apply to security futures communications. Exaggerated, unwarranted, or misleading statements about security futures are not allowed. Communications must be based on principles of fair dealing and good faith and should provide a sound basis for evaluating the facts in regard to any security future. Moreover, no material fact or qualification may be omitted if the omission, in the light of the context of the material presented, would cause the communication to be misleading. Communications with the public cannot contain promises of specific results, exaggerated or unwarranted claims or unwarranted superlatives, opinions for which there is no reasonable basis, or forecasts of future events that are unwarranted.

If a communication with the public makes a recommendation, the member must have a reasonable basis for the recommendation and must disclose, if applicable, several facts about its financial holdings in the issuer of a security related to its recommendation.

The proposed rule change contains requirements for sales literature or correspondence that contain projections or historical performance information. These sections are similar to provisions in the options advertising rule and also are substantially similar to the NFA's requirement regarding communications with the public for security futures.²¹

c. Qualifications of Registered Persons

The securities industry has a wide array of qualification examinations that registered persons can take to qualify to engage in various aspects of the securities business. To accommodate the introduction of security futures, NASD proposes a rule change to modify several registration categories. In general, where a registration category permits an individual to engage in an options business, NASD has modified the category to permit security futures.

As part of this change, NASD is working with other self-regulatory organizations to develop new and revised qualification examinations that will test applicants on security futures-related topics. NASD anticipates that the new and revised qualification examinations will be completed six months after retail trading in security futures commences.

The proposed rule change broadens the following qualifications categories to include security futures activities:

- Registered Options Principal (Series 4) becomes Registered Options and Security Futures Principal²²
- Limited Principal—General Securities Sales Supervisor (Series 9/10)
- General Securities Representative (Series 7)²³
- Limited Representative—Options (Series 42) becomes Limited Representative—Options and Security Futures.²⁴

For persons who currently are registered in one of these registration categories, or who become registered in one of these registration categories prior to the implementation of new examinations addressing security futures, NASD is instituting a firm-element continuing education requirement. NASD will require each registered person (or persons that take certain qualification examinations prior to such examinations being updated to include security futures questions) to complete a firm-element continuing education program on security futures prior to conducting a business in security futures. NASD will, pursuant to NASD Rule 1120(b)(4), specify the content of the continuing education program.²⁵

²² The proposed rule change also deletes a few outdated concepts from the provisions of Rule 1022(f). These deletions are unrelated to security futures.

²³ Specifically, a Series 43 examination will be offered for registered representatives wishing to engage in a security futures business. Once the Series 43 is developed, new applicants will choose to take only the Series 7, or, if they intend to engage in security futures business, the Series 7 and Series 43 examination. After the Series 43 examination is developed, persons taking only the Series 7 will not be permitted to engage in a security futures business. Completing a firm-element continuing education program will be an option available only for persons that are registered as a general securities representative before the Series 43 examination becomes available.

²⁵ NASD has not previously specified the content of firm-element continuing education and does not intend to do so in the future absent extraordinary circumstances. The introduction of security futures in the United States, however, presents extraordinary circumstances because these products have been banned from trading here for more than 19 years. Under these circumstances, NASD has concluded that using its authority set forth in Rule 1120(b)(4) to specify content of the firm element is appropriate.

¹⁸ Although many of the provisions of the proposed advertising rule for security futures are similar to the options advertising rule, the definitions of "options advertisement," "educational material," and "sales literature" differ from the definitions that will apply to security futures. Because the security futures rule will follow NASD's general advertising rule, the definition of "advertisement" is essentially material that is disseminated via mass media channels. See NASD Rule 2210(a)(1). "Sales literature" is defined to include circulars, research reports, market letters, performance reports or summaries, form letters, telemarketing scripts, seminar texts, and reprints or excerpts of any other advertisement, sales literature, or published article that is distributed or made generally available to customers or the public. See NASD Rule 2210(a)(2).

¹⁹ In particular circumstances, the Department may allow a shorter period than 10 days for its review.

²⁰ See NASD Rules 2220(d)(2)(A)(i), (ii), 2220(d)(2)(D)(i).

²¹ NFA Rule 2-29(j)(12). See Securities Exchange Act Release No. 44823 (September 20, 2001) 66 FR 49439 (September 27, 2001).

NASD's proposal, in effect, allows Registered Options Principals, Limited Principals—General Securities Sales Supervisors, General Securities Representatives, and Limited Representatives—Options to be “grandfathered” so that they will not be required to retake any expanded qualification examinations to sell or supervise security futures products. The “grandfathering” privilege will be limited to associated persons who are registered as Series 4, 7, 9/10, or 42.

As an alternative to continuing education, or because registered personnel will be expanding the scope of their securities business, NASD anticipates that certain existing registrants may take revised qualification examinations covering security futures. NASD has modified the registration categories to provide it with the flexibility to accept, for certain registration categories, other examinations that address security futures. For example, if a person has passed the Series 7 and subsequently takes the revised Series 3 (containing questions on security futures), NASD does not believe that it should be necessary for such person to complete a firm-element continuing education program as a prerequisite to engaging in a security futures business. In that case, the successful completion of the revised Series 3 demonstrates proficiency in security futures products. Once revised examinations are developed, NASD will announce in a Notice to Members or other publication the examinations that can be used to demonstrate proficiency in security futures for each registration category. In response to the SEC staff's request that NASD establish a sunset date, NASD has selected December 31, 2006 as a sunset date for the continuing education provisions. After that date, registrants who have passed a qualifications examination that does not include security futures, and who have not already completed a firm-element continuing education program on security futures, will be required to retake an examination to function in a registration category with respect to security futures.

In addition, NASD has amended Rule 1060(a) to exempt from registration with NASD persons associated with a member whose functions are related solely and exclusively to transactions in security futures, provided that such persons are registered with a registered futures association. The proposed rule change recognizes that certain persons in a firm that is fully registered as a broker/dealer and either an FCM or IB, who presently engage solely in a commodities business, will seek to expand their activities into security futures. The proposed rule change is necessary to avoid having such person be required to register with NASD as a representative. NASD believes that so long as such individuals are registered with a registered futures association, and such person's securities activities are limited solely to security futures, there should be no additional requirement for such persons to register with NASD. As a result of this change, for example, a person who is a Series 3 registered person with the NFA will not be required to take the Series 7 or Series 62 simply because such person intends to engage in a security futures business.

d. Short Sale Restrictions

The CFMA exempts transactions in security futures from the short sale provisions of Section 10(a) of the Exchange Act.²⁶ To harmonize NASD's rules with the amended short sale provision in the Exchange Act, NASD proposes to amend the affirmative determination provisions of NASD Rule 3370.²⁷ Rule 3370 generally requires an NASD member, prior to accepting a short sale order from a customer in any security, to make an affirmative determination that the member can borrow or otherwise provide for delivery of the security by the settlement date. NASD proposes to amend the affirmative determination requirement to exempt security futures from the application of the rule.²⁸ The proposed amendment would eliminate a member's affirmative determination obligation with respect to any short sale of a security future.

NASD further proposes to amend the definition of “bona fide fully hedged” positions to include certain long single stock futures positions in connection with short positions in the underlying stock. The amendment will treat long single stock futures positions similar to in-the-money call options, which are included in the categories of bona fide fully hedged positions.

²⁶ See Section 10(a)(2) of the Act; 15 U.S.C. 78j(a)(2).

²⁷ For Nasdaq National Market securities, NASD's rules currently include an additional short sale restriction: the bid test. See NASD Rule 3350(a). We believe that the bid test has no application to security futures, and we are not proposing any amendments to Rule 3350.

²⁸ Currently, the affirmative determination requirement of Rule 3370 does not apply to options transactions.

e. Taping Requirement of the Supervision Rule

NASD Rule 3010(b)(2) (the “Taping Rule”) requires certain NASD members to tape record “all telephone conversations between the member's registered persons and both existing and potential customers”²⁹ and maintain other special written procedures for supervising the telemarketing activities of all of its registered persons. NASD members become subject to the Taping Rule if a certain percentage of their registered persons have been employed by a disciplined firm within the last three years. The Taping Rule prevents registered persons who have been employed by disciplined firms from clustering together at a different firm. A disciplined firm is one that, in connection with sales practices involving the offer, purchase, or sale of any security, has been expelled from NASD membership, expelled from any other securities industry SRO, or is subject to an order of the SEC revoking its registration as a broker/dealer.

In the futures industry, the NFA's taping rule requires NFA members that have a certain percentage of associated persons who have been employed by disciplined firms to tape record telephone conversations between associated persons and customers. The NFA has a three-fold definition of a disciplined firm that includes the following: (1) The firm has been formally charged by either the CFTC or NFA with deceptive telemarketing practices or promotional material; (2) the charges have been resolved; and (3) the firm has been closed down and permanently barred from the industry as a result of those charges.³⁰

NASD proposes to broaden the scope of its Taping Rule to include FCMs and IBs that will be selling security futures within the group of intermediaries that can potentially meet the definition of a disciplined firm. The proposed rule change borrows the NFA's definition of a disciplined firm and adds it to NASD's existing definition.

²⁹ Rule 3010(b)(2)(iii). NASD has pending with the Commission a separate proposed rule change to Rule 3010(b)(2) that, among other changes, would permit firms that become subject to the Taping Rule a one-time opportunity to adjust their staffing level to fall below the prescribed threshold levels and thus avoid application of the Taping Rule. See Securities Exchange Act Release No. 46067 (June 12, 2002), 67 FR 41561 (June 18, 2002).

³⁰ NFA Rule 2–9: Enhanced Supervisory Requirements—Interpretive Notice.

f. Qualifications of Job Applicants

NASD Rule 3010(e) provides that members have a responsibility to investigate the good character, business reputation, qualifications, and experience of a job applicant before the member applies to register that applicant with NASD. When the job applicant previously has been registered with NASD, the member must obtain a copy of the applicant's Uniform Termination Notice of Securities Industry Registration (Form U-5) that was filed by the applicant's most recent member employer.

NASD proposes to add a requirement that would apply when a job applicant has been most recently employed by an FCM or an IB that is registered to trade securities futures, meaning the FCM or IB has notice-registered with the SEC pursuant to section 15(b)(11) of the Act.³¹ In such a case, the hiring firm would be required to review a copy of CFTC Form 8-T, Notice of Termination of Associated Person, NFA Associate, Branch Office Manager, Designated Supervisor or Principal. The Form 8-T asks for the same types of information as does the Form U-5.

The purpose of this proposed amendment is to modify an NASD member's obligation to review a job applicant's employment experience to include an applicant's experience while with a notice-registered broker/dealer. An individual's experience at such a firm may bear on his or her fitness to be sponsored by an NASD member. NASD anticipates that NASD members will be able to review the CFTC Form 8-T by requesting it from the applicant or the applicant's previous employer.

NASD is also amending Rule 3010(e) to provide members with greater flexibility in complying with its requirements. Currently, Rule 3010(e) requires members to obtain actual copies of the Form U-5 and amendments. When NASD replaced the Legacy Central Registration Depository ("CRD") system with Web CRDsm in August 1999, members received the ability to review Form U-5s and amendments via an internet connection. The Web CRD system allows members, with the applicant's consent, to review the Form U-5 by using a pre-hire search function. The proposed rule change recognizes the ability of members to use the advanced functionality of Web CRD to review Form U-5s. Members, however, will be expected to be able to demonstrate compliance with the Rule.

g. Front Running Policy

NASD's front running policy, IM-2110-3, prohibits members and associated persons from trading options or an underlying security when they have material, non-public market information concerning an imminent block transaction in the underlying security or in the overlying option. The front running policy applies to member's proprietary accounts, accounts in which a member or an associated person has an interest, discretionary accounts, and—when the member or a person associated with a member shares material, non-public market information with a customer—the customer's account.

NASD proposes to amend the front running policy to include security futures by having the rule apply to security futures in the same manner that it applies to options. For example, when a member has material, non-public market information concerning an imminent block transaction in a stock, the member will not be able to trade the single-stock future overlying that stock in its proprietary account, other accounts in which it has an interest, or discretionary accounts. The purpose of this proposed amendment is to prohibit broker/dealers from trading security futures at a profit when they have material, non-public market information concerning a stock or from trading a stock at a profit when they have material, non-public market information concerning a security future. Once the material, non-public market information has been made publicly available, however, the restrictions of the front running policy will no longer apply.

h. Transactions for or by Associated Persons

NASD Rule 3050 requires associated persons who seek to open accounts or place securities orders with an NASD firm that is not their employer to notify both their employer firm and the executing firm before they engage in such actions. This rule allows NASD firms to monitor the securities activities of their employees for the purpose of complying with several securities laws and regulations. NASD proposes to broaden the scope of the rule to require associated persons to notify their employer firm when they open an account with an FCM or IB that is registered to trade security futures.

2. Statutory Basis

NASD believes that the proposed rule change is consistent with the provisions of section 15A(b)(6) of the Act, which requires, among other things, that NASD's rules be designed to prevent fraudulent and manipulative acts and practices, to promote just and equitable principles of trade, and, in general, to protect investors and the public interest. NASD believes that these rule changes are necessary to implement the requirements of the CFMA and to establish new regulations that allow broker/dealers, FCMs, and IBs to trade security futures consistent with the CFMA.

B. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement on Burden on Competition

NASD does not believe that the proposed rule change will result in any burden on competition that is not necessary or appropriate in furtherance of the purposes of the Act, as amended.

C. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement on Comments on the Proposed Rule Change Received from Members, Participants, or Others

Written comments were neither solicited nor received.

III. Date Of Effectiveness of the Proposed Rule Change And Timing for Commission Action

A. By order approve such proposed rule change, or

A. By order approve such proposed rule change, or

B. institute proceedings to determine whether the proposed rule change should be disapproved.
