

Accounting is the Web CRD[®] function that provides firms and FINRA with the ability to view detailed financial information about their registration accounts. Firms that are both broker-dealer/investment adviser (joint firms) will be able to view both Web CRD financial account information and IARD[™] financial account information.

Web CRD Accounting Terminology

Flex-Funding Account	The Flex-Funding Account is the primary account, in which your firm will deposit funds, for day-to-day registration transactions to occur.
Renewal Account	The Renewal Account is the account your firm will use to participate in the annual Renewal Program, including viewing the Renewal Statement.
Account Status	The Account Status is defined as either Sufficient or Deficient and is determined based on the firm's running balance (i.e. Current Credit Balance/ Current Amount Due).
Sufficient Account Status	The firm's Flex-Funding Account balance is -$0.01 or less . Your firm's Account Status must be Sufficient for registration and exam requests to
Deficient Account Status	The firm's Flex-Funding Account balance is $0.00 or greater . If the firm's account balance goes above -$0.01 at any point throughout the day, the firm's account status will become Deficient and registration/exam requests will not be processed until the account becomes Sufficient again.
Posted Account Balance	The balance displayed in Web CRD is based on transactions that have already posted to the firm's Flex-Funding Account. The Posted Account Balance does not include all Processed Transactions or Funds Deficient Transactions. The posted balance will be updated after the close of business during an automated nightly reconciliation process. Therefore, the firm's Posted Account Balance remains the same for the entire day until the nightly reconciliation process occurs.
Current Credit Balance or Current Amount Due	This field will display the firm's running account balance. Running Balance = Posted Flex-Funding Account Balance - (Processed Transactions + Funds Deficient Transactions) A credit balance appears on Web CRD as a negative amount, indicating the funds available for registration transactions (i.e., Current Credit Balance). For example, if a firm's Current Credit balance is -$1,000.00, the firm has $1,000.00 available for registration transactions. A debit balance appears on Web CRD as a positive amount, indicating the amount owed by the firm's financial account (i.e., Current Amount Due). For example, a debit balance of $1,000.00 means that a firm's financial account owes $1,000.00 and has a Deficient Account Status.
