Member Responsibilities for Supervising Sales of Unregistered Equity-Indexed Annuities

Executive Summary

This Notice to Members addresses the responsibility of firms to supervise the sale by their associated persons of equity-indexed annuities (EIAs) that are not registered under the federal securities laws.¹

Questions/Further Information

Questions concerning this Notice may be directed to Thomas M. Selman, Senior Vice President, Investment Companies/Corporate Financing, (240) 386-4500.

Background and Discussion

Equity-indexed annuities are financial instruments in which the issuer, usually an insurance company, guarantees a stated interest rate and some protection from loss of principal, and provides an opportunity to earn additional interest based on the performance of a securities market index. Some EIAs are not registered under the Securities Act of 1933 (the Securities Act) based on a determination that they are insurance products that fall within that statute's Section 3(a)(8) exemption and therefore are not considered to be securities.²

According to one recently published estimate, in 2004 sales of equity-indexed annuities increased over 50 percent, from $14 billion in 2003 to an estimated $22 billion.³

1. Investor Protection Issues Presented by Equity-Indexed Annuities

EIAs are complex investments. Many EIAs permit investors to participate in only a stated percentage of an increase in an index. Many of these investments also impose a “cap rate” that represents the maximum annual account value percentage increase allowed to investors. Unregistered EIAs typically do not provide for investor participation in the dividends accumulated on the securities represented by the index.⁴ EIAs have other features that contribute to their complexity such as minimum guarantees and fees and expenses, including surrender charges, premium bonuses, and multiple premium payment arrangements. In addition, investors may assume mistakenly that EIAs provide the same returns as an index mutual fund.

NASD is concerned about the manner in which associated persons are marketing and selling unregistered EIAs, and the absence of adequate supervision of these sales practices. We have seen sales material for unregistered EIAs that do not fully describe the features and risks of the product. For example, we have seen the following claims:

- ◆ “What if the market goes down and you would lose nothing? The market goes up-you gain!”
- ◆ “A Win/Win Investment Vehicle!”
- ◆ “How Your Retirement Funds Can Have: Security of Principal, Higher Than CD Rates of Interest, Opportunity for Growth (No Losses)”
- ◆ “Pick up where Social Security leaves off with NEW tax-deferred annuities...featuring... 2 indexed accounts linked to a popular stock market index.”
- ◆ If you’re looking for upside potential and no market downside look no further than [name of EIA]. This fixed annuity... enables you to make the most of S&P 500 Index gains...”
- ◆ “Growth Potential without Market Risk.”

We understand that some associated persons who also act as insurance agents might be using this type of sales material in their insurance sales capacity. NASD is concerned that the unsupervised use of such sales material could confuse or mislead investors. If sales pieces containing these statements were deemed to be broker-dealer communications with the public, then they would be subject to the NASD advertising rules, and would have to provide a balanced description of the features and risks of the product.

Moreover, because of the product’s complexity, some associated persons might have difficulty understanding all of the features of the product and determining the extent to which those features meet the needs of the customer. While unregistered EIAs may be appropriate for some retail investors, they are not suitable for all investors. For example, possible surrender charges and the combination of caps and participation rates associated with a particular product are factors that must be considered in any suitability determination.

2. The Uncertain Status of Unregistered Equity-Indexed Annuities

The question of whether a particular EIA is an insurance product or a security is complicated and depends upon the particular facts and circumstances concerning the instrument offered or sold. NASD does not seek to resolve that issue in this Notice; nor is this Notice intended to describe those circumstances in which an EIA might be deemed to be a security. However, a brief summary of the applicable provisions of the federal securities laws may be useful.

Section 2(a)(1) of the Securities Act broadly defines “security” to include such financial instruments as evidence of indebtedness, participation in profit-sharing agreements, and investment contracts. Section 3(a)(8) generally exempts from the Securities Act any security that is an “insurance or endowment policy or annuity contract or optional annuity contract, issued by a corporation subject to the supervision of the insurance commissioner, bank commissioner, or any agency or officer performing like functions, of any State or Territory of the United States or the District of Columbia.”

In 1986, the Commission adopted Rule 151, a “safe harbor” under the Securities Act, which clarifies when certain annuity contracts are exempted securities under Section 3(a)(8). The fundamental construct of Rule 151 is derived from prior judicial interpretations of Section 3(a)(8). Consequently, the Commission has stated that the rationale underlying the conditions set forth in the rule are, along with applicable judicial interpretations, relevant to any Section 3(a)(8) analysis.⁵

In order for the Rule 151 safe harbor to apply:

- ◆ the product must be issued by an insurer that is subject to state insurance regulation;
- ◆ the insurer must assume investment risk, as provided in paragraph (b) of the rule; and
- ◆ the product may not be marketed primarily as an investment.

As noted above, the status of any particular EIA under the safe harbor (or under Section 3(a)(8)) will depend on the facts and circumstances. In 1997 the Commission issued a concept release requesting comment regarding EIAs.⁶

3. Supervision under Rule 3030 and Rule 3040

Many firms assume that EIAs that are not registered under the Securities Act are insurance products and not securities. These firms treat the sale of unregistered EIAs by associated persons in their capacity as insurance agents as an outside business activity under Rule 3030, beyond the mandated purview of the firm's supervision. Rule 3030 does not require that the firm supervise or even approve an outside business activity, although a firm may choose to deny or limit the ability of associated persons to engage in the activity. Rule 3030 simply requires that an associated person promptly notify the firm in writing that he is engaging in a business activity outside the scope of his relationship with the firm.

However, if a particular EIA were a security, and an associated person sold the EIA outside the regular scope of his employment with the firm, Rule 3040 requires that the firm treat the sale as a private securities transaction and supervise the sale in accordance with the provisions of that rule. The associated person must notify the firm in writing before participating in a private securities transaction. If the associated person will receive compensation for the transaction, the firm must provide written approval of his participation in the transaction. If the firm does approve the participation, it must record the transaction on its books and records and supervise the associated person's participation in the transaction as if the transaction were executed on behalf of the firm.

A broker-dealer runs certain risks in applying Rule 3030 to the sale of an unregistered EIA on the assumption that the product is not a security. It is often unclear whether a particular EIA qualifies for the exemption under Section 3(a)(8), since the analysis is made on a case-by-case basis and may turn on the particular features and marketing materials associated with the product. As a result, if a particular EIA did not qualify for the exemption, a firm might incorrectly treat the EIA transaction as an outside business activity under Rule 3030 rather than a private securities transaction under Rule 3040 and thereby fail to supervise sales of the product as required by NASD rules.

Perhaps for these reasons, some firms require that associated persons obtain firm approval to sell exempt insurance products. Other firms require that their associated persons obtain more specific approval to sell unregistered EIAs. Still other firms maintain a list of approved EIAs and prohibit the sale of all others.

4. Supervisory Measures

Due to the uncertainty as to whether a particular unregistered EIA may be a security, as well as the potential regulatory violations and investor protection issues that would arise by the marketing and sale of unregistered EIAs that are deemed to be securities, firms must adopt special procedures under Rule 3030 with respect to these products. In particular, firms must require that their associated persons promptly notify the firm in writing when they intend to sell unregistered EIAs. Moreover, all recommendations to liquidate or surrender a registered security such as a mutual fund, variable annuity, or variable life contract must be suitable, including where such liquidations or surrender are for the purpose of funding the purchase of an unregistered EIA.

As discussed above, NASD is not taking a position on whether a particular EIA is a security, nor are we attempting to describe the circumstances in which an EIA would be deemed a security. However, the uncertainty of this matter has led some firms to treat an associated person's sale of an unregistered EIA outside the regular course or scope of his employment with the firm, as a private securities transaction. These firms supervise the sale according to Rule 3040 procedures. Firms are well advised to consider whether they should take a similar approach. Firms should consider maintaining a list of acceptable unregistered EIAs and prohibiting their associated persons from selling any other unregistered EIA, unless the associated person notifies the firm in writing that he intends to recommend an unregistered EIA that is not on the firm's list, and receives the firm's written confirmation that the sale of the unregistered EIA is acceptable.

Firms are encouraged to consider whether other supervisory procedures also might help protect the firm's customers. For example, a firm could require that all sales of unregistered EIAs occur through the firm. If an associated person is selling the unregistered EIA through the firm, the firm must supervise the marketing material, suitability analysis, and other sales practices associated with the recommendation of unregistered EIAs in the same manner that it supervises the sale of securities.

Firms also must provide any associated person selling any unregistered EIA through the firm with the proper training to understand the EIA's features and the extent to which the EIA meets the needs of a particular customer. The fact that an associated person holds a license as an insurance agent may not adequately qualify him to understand the features of an EIA or the extent to which an EIA meets the needs of a particular customer.

Of course, in this as in all other areas, NASD expects every associated person to comply with the procedures adopted by his firm.

Endnotes

- 1 The sale of an EIA registered under the federal securities laws is subject to the full panoply of regulation applicable to the sale of any security.

The principles articulated in this Notice apply to EIAs that are sold by associated persons of a broker-dealer, whether the EIA has been manufactured by an insurance company that is affiliated with the broker-dealer or by an unaffiliated insurance company.
- 2 The Securities and Exchange Commission (the Commission) has previously stated that Congress intended any insurance contract falling within Section 3(a)(8) to be excluded from all provisions of the Securities Act notwithstanding the language of the Act indicating that Section 3(a)(8) is an exemption from registration but not the antifraud provisions. See Definition of "Annuity Contract or Optional Annuity Contract," Securities Act Release No. 6558 (Nov. 21, 1984), 49 Fed. Reg. 46750, 46753 (Nov. 28, 1984).

- 4 The index return may be calculated in a variety of ways, such as the "annual reset" method, under which the index starting point is reset each contract year; the "point-to-point" method, under which the change in the index from the start of a term is compared to the index at the end of the term; and the "annual high-water mark with look-back" method, which is a variation on the point-to-point method except that it compares the index starting point to the highest anniversary value during the term.

The court granted a motion to dismiss based upon the finding that the EIA, which was the subject of litigation, in that case was exempt from the federal securities laws. See *Malone v. Volume-Weighted Average Price Transactions

Member Obligations with Respect to Volume-Weighted Average Price Transactions

Executive Summary

NASD reminds members that when executing a volume-weighted average price (VWAP) or other large, potentially market-moving transactions for a customer,¹ it is inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trade (Rule 2110) and a member's best execution obligations (Rule 2320) to engage in proprietary trading activity that compromises the customer's interest in favor of a member's proprietary trading interest. Moreover, members who have received such orders have a duty to disclose in writing to the customer that the member may engage in hedging or other positioning activity that could affect the market for a security that is involved in the transaction. Depending on the nature of the order and the specificity known about it by the member, a duty to disclose such trading activity may arise even before a member is awarded the order for execution.

Members are further cautioned against manipulative activity or impermissible market conditioning in connection with executing a VWAP or other large order and reminded that best execution obligations always pertain once an order is received. Members also must establish and maintain information barriers and appropriate supervisory procedures reasonably designed to ensure the integrity of the trading activity and to evaluate the execution quality of VWAP and other large orders.

Questions/Further Information

Questions concerning this Notice may be directed to the Legal Section, Market Regulation, at (240) 386-5126; or Philip A. Shaikun, Associate General Counsel, Office of General Counsel, Regulatory Policy and Oversight, at (202) 728-8451.

Background and Discussion

Adherence to just and equitable principles of trade as mandated by Rule 2110 requires that members handle and execute any order received from a customer in a manner that does not disadvantage the customer or place the member's financial interests ahead of those of its customer. Furthermore, Rule 2320 requires a member to fill an order for a customer at a price as favorable as possible under prevailing market conditions; consequently, transactions by a member that disadvantage or place the member's financial interests ahead of those of its customer may violate Rule 2320. In the context of certain large, potentially market-moving orders—VWAPs, large institutional orders, and basket transactions, for example—a member's duty to a customer may arise even prior to the actual receipt of an order and may include an additional obligation to disclose hedging or other positioning activity that could affect the market for a security that is involved in the transaction.

The potential for the duty to arise prior to receipt of the order results from the process involved in negotiating and executing such large transactions. Typically, a customer will procure confidential bids to execute a large order in one or more stocks that could move the market if known publicly. In order to minimize its risk, a member that is awarded the order may engage in bona fide hedging or positioning activity prior to execution of the order. In some instances, members that are competing to fill the order also will enter into similar transactions in anticipation of winning the bid. Such trading activity might include buying or selling a security (if known) that is involved in the bid or buying an option or a future on the underlying security or basket of securities.

While these transactions do not constitute a per se violation of NASD rules, they can have an effect on the market for the security or securities that are the subject of the solicited transaction. For example, a member competing for a VWAP buy order might, in anticipation of winning the bid, begin to accumulate a sizeable position in the security that is being bought by the customer. Such buying activity could affect the trading price of the security and consequently the VWAP to the customer.²

When a member receives the customer's order, its duty to the customer is unequivocally established, and the member therefore is obligated to: (1) refrain from any conduct that could disadvantage or harm the execution of the customer's order or place the member's financial interests ahead of those of its customer's, and (2) if applicable, disclose in writing to the customer that the member intends to engage in hedging and other positioning activity that could affect the market for the security that is the subject of the transaction, and consequently the cost or proceeds to the customer (collectively referred to as "the duty to refrain and disclose"). The disclosure must be made prior to receipt and/or execution of the order and be in the form of an affirmative consent letter that covers potential hedging and positioning transactions related to the handling of VWAP and other large orders. Members need not obtain affirmative consent on a transaction-by-transaction basis; however, members should at least annually take steps to have their customers reaffirm their consent.

Whether the same duty exists before a member is awarded an order for execution will turn on, among other factors, the type of order and the specifics of the order known by the member. Depending on the type of order, the specifics might include the name of the security, the size of the order, the side of the market (i.e., buy or sell), the weighting of a basket order, and the timing for completion of the order. Thus, a duty could be established as early as the initial contact by the customer to seek bids for its order. In any event, once a member knows or has reason to know the order details to a degree of confidence whereby the member can engage without undue speculative risk in targeted hedging or positioning activity, then the same duty under Rules 2110 and 2320 to refrain and disclose attaches as if the member had actually received the order. This duty remains in place until the transaction is completed or the information upon which the member bid for the transaction becomes stale or obsolete. In addition, a member that bids unsuccessfully for the transaction, yet knows or has reason to know the order details to a degree of confidence, similarly must refrain from trading on, or communicating to another party, the information gleaned during the bidding process until the transaction is completed or the information becomes stale or obsolete, unless the trading is carried out by individuals who have been sufficiently walled off from obtaining the non-public information.

Other than for the purpose of fulfilling the customer order, under no circumstances may a member trade for its proprietary account on the non-public information it receives from the current or prospective customer or communicate such non-public information to another entity or person outside of the member. Such conduct is inconsistent with Rule 2110 and may also violate other NASD rules or the federal securities laws. A member may continue to engage in market making or proprietary trading in the subject securities only where the member has established effective information barriers reasonably designed to prevent internal disclosure of the non-public information.³

NASD cautions that, irrespective of whether a member is competing for or has received an order, under no circumstances may a member engage in manipulative market activity. Disclosure of hedging and positioning trading set forth above does not create a safe harbor from market manipulation, fraud, or best execution violations. Accordingly, members are reminded that they may not take any steps to create an artificial appearance of demand (supply) for the security or establish artificially high (low) prices by engaging in unnecessary trading, increased quote activity, or entering orders around the close of when a VWAP or other large order is executed. NASD will aggressively pursue any such conduct to manipulate or condition the market to achieve a favorable execution of a large customer order.⁴

Marking of Orders

Depending on the terms and characteristics of an order, a VWAP or similar transaction must be classified as either long or short for purposes of order entry and reporting. Short sale orders must be executed in compliance with all applicable NASD and SEC short sale rules and regulations. With respect to a VWAP, both the individual trades by the member to accommodate the VWAP and the aggregate VWAP trade itself are subject to those short sale rules and regulations. In the event that a member is short the securities underlying a VWAP sell order, the member's order(s) may need to be marked "short" (or "short exempt," if applicable), depending on the firm's (or aggregation unit's) overall position, even if the customer is long the subject securities. Members should refer to applicable NASD and SEC rules, interpretations, and no-action letters when determining how to mark the individual trades by the member to accommodate the VWAP and the aggregate VWAP trade itself.

Failure to accurately mark orders also may result in disciplinary action for failure to maintain proper books and records.

Compensation

Members that receive a VWAP or similar order must disclose to the customer in writing the specifics of the terms of compensation it will receive to execute the order. Thus, for example, a member must disclose if it intends to retain or split with the customer any profits that result if the member improves upon the VWAP.

Supervision

Pursuant to Rule 3010, members must have in place supervisory procedures reasonably designed to ensure that the order handling and trading activities discussed in this Notice comply with NASD Rules and the applicable federal securities laws. Thus, members should establish and maintain adequate procedures to evaluate the quality of execution of VWAP and other large orders. Those procedures should include, without limitation, an evaluation of proprietary trading that took place in advance of the execution of such orders. If applicable, the procedures also should be designed reasonably to ensure that customers affirmatively acknowledged the receipt of notice that the member may engage in hedging or other trading activity related to the execution of the customer's order.

Members should specify in their written supervisory procedures the circumstances under which hedging or positioning trades will be reviewed and identify which trades will be reviewed and the manner in which such review will take place. The written procedures further should identify who will conduct the review, how often the review will occur, what steps should be taken if suspicious activity is discovered, and how the discharge of the supervisory responsibilities will be documented. In addition, members should establish and maintain adequate information barriers to prevent and surveil for suspect simultaneous trading away from the sales desk.

Endnotes

- 1 Consistent with NASD Rule 0120(g), the term “customer order” for purposes of this Notice shall not include an order received from another broker-dealer.
- 2 Members are encouraged to review the March 2004 decision of the United Kingdom’s Financial Services Authority in which it levied a £190,000 fine against Morgan Grenfell & Company Limited for failing to disclose its hedging activity in anticipation of winning a blind bid to execute a customer’s program trade. The firm’s proprietary trading caused the customer to pay more to execute the transaction. The decision and findings can be found at: www.fsa.gov.uk/pubs/final/m-grenfell_18mar_04.pdf.
- 3 Even where a duty exists to a customer, a member is not precluded from all trading activity related to the subject securities or required to disclose every such transaction. Thus, for example, members may execute: a prior customer order; bona fide hedge transactions that the member can demonstrate are unrelated to the information received in connection with the VWAP or other large customer orders and where the member has information barriers established to prevent internal disclosure of non-public information; “black box” orders where the member has no actual knowledge that such order has been routed for execution; trades to correct a bona fide error; and odd-lot transactions to offset odd-lot orders. Furthermore, this Notice is not intended to prevent a member from handling multiple customers’ orders that might compete with or disadvantage each other. However, it may be a violation of Rule 2110 for a member to share information about the order other than to facilitate that specific customer transaction.
- 4 This Notice is not intended to set out all violations that may occur in connection with the execution of VWAP orders and other large orders; members should be aware that the conduct described may also violate other NASD rules or federal securities laws.

SEC Approves Amendments to TRACE Fee Structure Establishing an Enterprise Fee and Lowering Fee for Receipt of Real-Time TRACE Transaction Data via Web Browser; Effective Date: October 1, 2005

Executive Summary

On August 1, 2005, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC or Commission) approved an amendment to Rule 7010(k), adding an enterprise fee structure and lowering another fee related to the receipt of Real-Time TRACE transaction data. This fee change will enable an enterprise such as a broker-dealer to display Real-Time TRACE transaction data on an unlimited number of internal display devices for a fee of $7,500 per month. The fee for Level II Full Service Web Browser Access also has been lowered, so that the charge for the first user ID obtained for such access will be $50 per month rather than the current $80 per month.

The rules, as amended, are set forth in Attachment A.

The amendments become effective October 1, 2005.

Questions/Further Information

Questions concerning this Notice should be directed to James L. Eastman, Assistant General Counsel, Office of General Counsel (OGC), Regulatory Policy and Oversight (RPO), at (202) 728-6961; Sharon K. Zackula, Associate General Counsel, OGC, RPO, at (202) 728-8985; or David Lefferts, Associate Vice President, Corporate Debt, at (212) 858-4389.

Background and Discussion

On August 1, 2005, the SEC approved an amendment to Rule 7010(k)(3)(A)(i), the Bond Trade Dissemination Service (BTDS) Professional Real-Time Data Display Fee, to enable an enterprise such as a broker-dealer to display Real-Time TRACE transaction data within the enterprise on an unlimited number of internal display devices for a fee of $7,500 per month.¹ The SEC also approved an amendment to Rule 7010(k)(1)(A), Web Browser Access, to lower the fee for Level II Full Service Web Browser Access, so that the charge for the first user ID obtained for such access will be $50 per month rather than the current $80 per month.

NASD has modified the TRACE fee structure because NASD believes the new structure may significantly increase the use of Real-Time TRACE transaction data among users of such data (Subscribers) such as registered representatives, investment advisors, and other persons serving retail investors, as well as address cost concerns that have been expressed by members. NASD believes that broadening the distribution of Real-Time TRACE transaction data will facilitate its use by persons who provide brokerage and/or advisory services to retail investors, and will provide such professionals with an additional tool to better serve and inform retail investors. Moreover, broadening the distribution of Real-Time TRACE transaction data is likely to have an incremental, beneficial effect on corporate bond market transparency and pricing by generally raising the level of awareness and overall knowledge of specific bond issues as well as the bond market generally.

Proposed "Enterprise" Fee

Currently, NASD charges Subscribers $60 per month, per terminal (the BTDS Professional Real-Time Data Display Fee) to display Real-Time TRACE transaction data. Members have indicated that this $60 per month, per terminal charge is cost prohibitive for organizations with large numbers of potential internal users of the data. Subscribers serving large numbers of retail investors have indicated that they likely would distribute Real-Time TRACE transaction data much more widely within their organizations if the costs were reduced.

To address these concerns, NASD has amended Rule 7010(k)(3)(A)(i) to provide Subscribers the option of paying a flat, enterprise fee of $7,500 per month instead of $60 per terminal (i.e., per screen or interrogation or display device). This amendment is intended to benefit Subscribers that have a large staff of potential internal data users who desire access to Real-Time TRACE transaction data. Instead of paying multiple $60 BTDS Professional Real-Time Data Display Fees, a Subscriber would have the option to pay a flat fee of $7,500 per month to display Real-Time TRACE transaction data on an unlimited number of internal terminals/workstations.

The proposed amendment to Rule 7010(k)(3)(A)(i) will apply only to a Subscriber's internal display of Real-Time TRACE transaction data and will be independent of access method or data vendor. The proposed $7,500 enterprise fee option will include unlimited terminal display use for individual access for all of a Subscriber's employees and the employees of certain of its corporate affiliates.²

Level II Full Service Web Browser Access Fee

To encourage use of Real-Time TRACE transaction data among Subscribers of varying sizes, NASD also has amended Rule 7010(k)(1)(A) to reduce the fees paid by Subscribers who receive Real-Time TRACE transaction data through Level II Full Service Web Browser Access. Such smaller Subscribers are unlikely to directly benefit from the new enterprise pricing structure.

Currently, the implicit cost for Level II Full Service Web Browser Access used to receive Real-Time TRACE transaction data is $60 per month (per user ID).³ NASD has reduced the cost of the first user ID per Subscriber to receive Level II Full Service Web Browser Access from $80 per month to $50 per month. This change will reduce a Subscriber's marginal cost for the data portion of Level II Full Service Web Browser Access for the first user ID by 50 percent to $30 per month.

Endnotes

- 1 See Securities Exchange Act Release No. 52183 (August 1, 2005), 70 FR 46239 (August 9, 2005) (SR-NASD-2005-063).
- 2 A Subscriber wishing to take advantage of this option must first enter into an agreement directly with NASD, which in turn will notify the data vendors with which the Subscriber does business to provide blanket permission for use of Real-Time TRACE transaction data to any user within that organization. A Subscriber interested in this option should contact NASD's TRACE group at (888) 507-3665.
- 3 Level II Full Service Web Browser Access today costs $80 per month. However, Level II Full Service Web Browser Access also grants users Level I Web Trade Report Only Browser Access (for trade reporting), which otherwise would cost an additional $20 per month per user ID. Therefore, prior to the fee changes adopted by NASD the marginal cost of Level II Full Service Web Browser Access was $60 per month, per user ID.

SEC Approves Amendments to IM-10104 to Provide Payment to Arbitrators for Deciding Discovery-Related Motions; Effective Date: September 26, 2005

Executive Summary

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has approved an amendment to Interpretive Material (IM) 10104 of the NASD Code of Arbitration Procedure (Code) to provide payment to arbitrators for deciding discovery-related motions without a hearing session.¹

The text of the amendment is set forth in Attachment A. The amendment will become effective on September 26, 2005, and will apply to any arbitrator order issued on or after September 26, 2005, that decides a discovery-related motion.

Questions/Further Information

Questions regarding this Notice may be directed to Mignon McLemore, Assistant Chief Counsel, NASD Dispute Resolution, at (202) 728-8151, or via email at mignon.mclemore@nasd.com.

Background and Discussion

When parties have a dispute over the pre-hearing production of information or documents ("discovery"), an arbitrator may choose to hold a hearing to hear arguments from the parties.² The arbitrator conducts such hearings as pre-hearing telephone conferences, for which the arbitrator receives an honorarium of $200. Arbitrators currently are not, however, compensated for deciding discovery-related motions without a hearing ("on the papers"). In arbitrator focus groups conducted across the country, one of the consistently raised concerns was the amount of time and effort invested by arbitrators, particularly chairpersons, in reviewing and deciding various discovery motions. NASD considered these concerns and determined that the arbitrators performed a substantial amount of uncompensated work in resolving discovery-related motions.

In light of these findings, NASD has amended IM-10104 of the Code to provide payment to arbitrators for deciding discovery-related motions without a hearing session. NASD believes this amendment will motivate a greater number of arbitrators to accept assignments as chairpersons, thus expanding the pool of qualified arbitrators willing to serve in this role. Moreover, NASD believes the amendment will encourage arbitrators to decide discovery-related motions on the papers without scheduling a pre-hearing conference, thereby expediting the pace of arbitrations.

Under amended IM-10104, an arbitrator will be paid $200 to decide a discovery-related motion without a hearing session. This is the same amount an arbitrator receives to participate in a pre-hearing conference regarding discovery. For purposes of amended IM-10104, a discovery-related motion and any replies or other correspondence relating to the motion will be considered to be a single motion.³ If more than one arbitrator considers a discovery-related motion, each arbitrator will receive $200. The panel will allocate the cost of the honoraria as part of the allocation of fees in the eventual arbitration award. The rule will not apply to simplified cases administered under Rules 10203 and 10302.

Effective Date Provisions

The amendment described in this Notice will become effective on September 26, 2005. The amendment will apply to any arbitrator order issued on or after September 26, 2005, that decides a discovery-related motion.

- 2 Rule 10321(d) provides that the Director of Arbitration may appoint a person to preside at a pre-hearing conference to deal with the exchange of information, the exchange or production of documents, identification of witnesses, and other pre-hearing matters. Normally, the single arbitrator or the chair of a three-arbitration panel will be appointed to preside.
- 3 A motion for sanctions for failure to comply with discovery will be considered a "discovery-related" motion.

Extension of Pilot Program Increasing Position and Exercise Limits for Stock Options

Executive Summary

On August 10, 2005, NASD filed for immediate effectiveness with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) amendments to Rule 2860, which extend a pilot program that increases certain stock options position and exercise limits to March 3, 2006. The pilot program was scheduled to expire on September 2, 2005.

The rules, as amended, are set forth in Attachment A. The amendments became effective August 10, 2005.

Questions/Further Information

Questions concerning this Notice may be directed to Gary L. Goldsholle, Associate Vice President and Associate General Counsel, Office of General Counsel (OGC), Regulatory Policy and Oversight (RPO), at (202) 728-8104, or James L. Eastman, Assistant General Counsel, OGC, RPO, at (202) 728-6961.

Background and Discussion

On August 10, 2005, NASD filed for immediate effectiveness with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) amendments to Rule 2860, which extend a pilot program that increases certain stock options position and exercise limits to March 3, 2006.¹ The pilot program was scheduled to expire on September 2, 2005.² NASD extended the pilot program to allow it to continue without interruption and to conform to similar pilot programs that were recently extended by other self-regulatory organizations (SROs) with options rules.³

NASD Rule 2860(b)(3)(A) imposes a ceiling or position limit on the number of conventional and standardized equity options contracts in each class on the same side of the market (i.e., aggregating long calls and short puts, or long puts and short calls) that can be held or written by a member, a person associated with a member, a customer, or a group of customers acting in concert.⁴ The rule provides that the position limits for stock options are determined according to a five-tiered system in which more actively traded stocks with larger public floats are subject to higher position limits. Pursuant to a pilot program that began March 30, 2005, and now ends March 3, 2006, (unless extended) (Pilot Period), the limits for each of the tiers remains increased as follows: a) 13,500 contracts has been increased to 25,000 contracts, b) 22,500 contracts has been increased to 50,000 contracts, c) 31,500 contracts has been increased to 75,000 contracts, d) 60,000 contracts has been increased to 200,000 contracts, and e) 75,000 contracts has been increased to 250,000 contracts. These tiers apply to both conventional and standardized options. Options exercise limits, which are set forth in Rule 2860(b)(4), and which incorporate by reference the position limits in Rule 2860(b)(3), also have been increased during the Pilot Period.

Disciplinary and Other NASD Actions

REPORTED FOR AUGUST

NASD® has taken disciplinary actions against the following firms and individuals for violations of NASD rules; federal securities laws, rules, and regulations; and the rules of the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board (MSRB). The information relating to matters contained in this Notice is current as of the end of July 2005.

Firms Fined, Individuals Sanctioned

David A. Noyes & Company (CRD #205, Chicago, Illinois) and Anthony Michael Quirini (CRD #369593, Registered Principal, Kenilworth, Illinois) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver, and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $10,000, jointly and severally with Quirini. The firm was fined an additional $30,000, and must obtain a "no objection" letter from the NASD Advertising Regulation Department on any proposed sales literature or advertising prior to its use for one year. Quirini was suspended from association with any NASD member in any capacity for 10 business days. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the firm and Quirini consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that Quirini created and distributed sales literature in the manner of form letters to the public that the firm failed to file with NASD's Advertising Regulation Department. NASD found that these form letters contained statements that exaggerated the safety of the products and failed to reflect the risks of fluctuating prices and the uncertainty of rates of return and the yield of investments.

The findings stated that the form letters failed to provide balanced presentations of the risks and rewards of the products offered, failed to disclose material information regarding the risks of each proposed investment, and failed to provide a sound basis for evaluating the recommendations contained in the letters. The findings also stated that the firm failed to adequately and properly supervise the use of these form letters and failed to establish, maintain, and enforce adequate written supervisory procedures designed to achieve compliance with applicable securities laws and regulations.

Quirini's suspension began July 18, 2005, and concluded at the close of business July 29, 2005. (NASD Case # C8A050058)

Jersey Shore Trading Group, Inc. (CRD #47440, Red Bank, New Jersey) and John F. Helbock (CRD #1593811, Registered Principal, Holmdel, New Jersey) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver, and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $25,000, $15,000 of which was jointly and severally with Helbock. Helbock was suspended from association with any NASD member in any principal or supervisory capacity for 30 business days. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the firm and Helbock consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that the firm, acting through Helbock, permitted a statutorily disqualified person to be associated with and conduct activities on behalf of the firm. NASD also found that the firm executed order tickets for equity and municipal transactions that were deficient. The findings also stated that the firm was late in reporting municipal securities transactions executed by the firm.

Helbock's suspension began July 5, 2005, and will conclude at the close of business August 15, 2005. (NASD Case #C9B050038)

Stoever, Glass & Company Inc., (CRD # 7031, New York, New York) and Michael Francis Carrigg (CRD #1061325, Registered Principal, Sandy Hook, Connecticut) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver, and Consent in which they were censured and fined $7,500, jointly and severally. The firm was fined an additional $5,000, and Carrigg was suspended from association with any NASD member in any financial and operations principal (FINOP) capacity for 10 business days. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the firm and Carrigg consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that the firm commingled customer securities with non-customer securities to collateralize bank loans. The findings also stated that the firm, acting through Carrigg, collateralized the loan set up for firm trades with a customer security position that was not fully paid and permitted a customer's fully paid securities to remain in a non-control location for an extended period of time. In addition, NASD determined that the firm neglected to report to the Trade Reporting and Compliance Engine (TRACE) the underlying yield to inter-dealer corporate debt security transactions. NASD also found that the firm failed to make a timely transaction report to TRACE.

Carrigg's suspension began July 5, 2005, and concluded at the close of business July 18, 2005. (NASD Case #C10050045)

Strasbourg Pearson Tulcin Wolff Inc. (CRD #5133, New York, New York) and Michael J. Schumacher (CRD #415895, Registered Principal, Purchase, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver, and Consent in which they were fined $12,500, jointly and severally. The firm was censured and fined an additional $17,500, and Schumacher was suspended from association with any NASD member in all principal capacities for 15 business days. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the firm and Schumacher consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that the firm, acting through Schumacher, failed to establish and maintain a supervisory system, including adequate written supervisory procedures, reasonably designed to achieve compliance by the firm and its representatives with numerous NASD rules. The findings also stated that the firm, acting through Schumacher, permitted a registered representative to conduct a securities business while his registration was inactive. In addition, NASD determined that the firm failed to conduct independent testing of its anti-money laundering (AML) compliance programs, collect all required information for wire order/transfers, review wire orders, and verify the identities of customers who open accounts in violation of NASD Rules 2110 and 3011.

Schumacher's suspension began July 5, 2005, and concluded at the close of business July 25, 2005. (NASD Case #C07050040)

Firm and Individual Fined

Coburn & Meredith, Inc. (CRD #164, Hartford, Connecticut) and Barry Mohun Coburn (CRD #49264, Registered Principal, West Simsbury, Connecticut) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver, and Consent in which they were censured and fined $10,000, jointly and severally. The firm was fined an additional $7,500, $5,000 of which was assessed jointly and severally with another individual. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the firm and Coburn consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that the firm, acting through an individual, failed to comply with their claimed exemption under Section 15c of the Exchange Act, Rule 15c3-3(k)(2)(ii) in that the firm received checks made payable to the firm rather than to the firm's clearing firm. NASD also found that the firm, acting through an individual, used the instrumentalities of interstate commerce to conduct a securities business while failing to maintain its required minimum net capital. NASD determined that the firm, acting through Coburn, failed to establish, maintain, and enforce written procedures reasonably designed to achieve compliance with applicable securities laws, regulations, and NASD rules regarding the receipt of customer checks. The findings also stated that the firm was late in filing municipal securities transaction reports to the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board (MSRB). In addition, NASD found that the firm, acting through Coburn, sent confirmations to customers involving municipal transactions that improperly disclosed to the customer that the firm was acting in a principal capacity when, in fact, the transactions effected involved cross trades between the customer and another person. (NASD Case #C11050018)

Firms Fined

Ariel Distributors, Inc. (CRD #38333, Chicago, Illinois) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver, and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $40,000. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it used the mails or other means of interstate commerce to effect transactions in securities when it failed to maintain the minimum required net capital. The findings also stated that the firm prepared inaccurate trial balances, general ledgers, and net capital computations. NASD also found that the firm filed FOCUS (Financial and Operational Combined Uniform Single) IIA reports and an annual audit that overstated the member's net capital. In addition, NASD found that the firm failed to implement and exercise adequate supervisory controls to monitor and verify the accuracy of the amounts of 12b-1 fees payable that were computed by a non-affiliated entity that resulted in inaccurate net capital computations. (NASD Case #C8A050056)

Chicago Investment Group, L.L.C. (CRD #11853, Chicago, Illinois) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver, and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $22,000. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it used the mails or other means or instrumentalities of interstate commerce to effect transactions in securities when it failed to maintain the minimum required net capital. The findings also stated that the firm prepared inaccurate trial balances, general ledgers, and net capital computations. The findings also stated that the firm filed FOCUS IIA reports that overstated the member's net capital. NASD found that the firm failed to prepare and maintain adequate written supervisory procedures to ensure that employees whose registrations were subject to numerous strict supervisory guidelines and restrictions by several state securities regulators remained in compliance with those restrictions. NASD also found that the firm failed to obtain NASD approval prior to effecting a material change in business operations in that the firm increased the number of associated persons involved in sales activities beyond the limits delineated in IM-1011-1. (NASD Case #C8A050052)

CJS Securities, Inc. (CRD #44823, White Plains, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver, and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $40,000. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it permitted its analysts to sell securities issued by companies for which the analysts were primarily responsible for research coverage at times when the firm's recommendation was to buy or hold the security. The findings stated that the firm's analysts bought or sold securities issued by companies for which the analysts were primarily responsible for research coverage during a period of time prior to or after the issuance of research reports concerning those companies. The findings also stated that the firm issued research reports covering companies from which the firm had received, or expected to receive, compensation for investment banking services in connection with participation in public offerings of the companies' securities. NASD found that the firm did not have written supervisory procedures reasonably designed to achieve compliance with NASD Rule 2711. (NASD Case #C3A050031)

Equity Trading Online, LLC (CRD #104038, New York, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver, and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $13,500, $6,000 of which was jointly and severally with an individual. NASD found that the firm continued to sell variable annuity policies to the hedge fund client after receiving written notice that the client's trading strategy was considered disruptive and contrary to the interest of long-term investors. NASD determined that the fund client was able to execute transfers in the sub-accounts that yielded profits in excess of $46,000 at the expense of long-term investors. The findings also stated that registered representatives of the firm did not complete one or both of two components of the required firm element continuing education program developed by the firm.

The findings further stated that the firm settled a customer complaint by means of a settlement agreement that contained language implying that the customer could not voluntarily assist NASD or any self-regulatory organization with respect to the subject matter of the settlement. Without admitting or denying the allegations, Herzog consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that he facilitated deceptive practices regarding market timing in the sub-accounts of variable annuities for a hedge fund client that purported to manage money for wealthy individuals and corporate entities they established for that purpose. The hedge fund client used a number of different accounts to purchase variable annuity contracts from an insurance company, and enabled the hedge fund client to use these accounts to carry out frequent transfers among the sub-accounts of variable annuities without being detected by the insurance company or by mutual fund managers.

NASD determined that after the insurance company notified Herzog that it was exercising its contractual right to terminate transfer privileges on contracts, Herzog submitted new applications to the insurance company for the same product on behalf of the same business entities, sometimes listing another employee of the hedge fund client as the annuitant, and sometimes using different corporate identities with different account numbers and tax ID numbers in an attempt to avoid detection as a market timer. In fact, the annuitants were officers of employees of the hedge fund client. NASD determined that Herzog's conduct was intended to deceive the insurance company and allow the hedge fund client to continue trading contracts. NASD also found that Herzog continued to process orders to sell variable annuity policies for the hedge fund client after receiving written notice from the insurance company that it considered the client's trading strategy to be disruptive and contrary to the interest of long-term investors.

The findings stated that following his completion of the training module, Jones submitted a completion certificate to the firm, falsely indicating that the other representative had completed the training module, causing the firm's books and records to be inaccurate.

The sanctions were based on findings that Kapara failed to respond to NASD requests for information and to appear for on-the-record interviews. The findings also stated that Kapara submitted a copy of his purported signed resignation letter bearing a date that was false and misleading to NASD. In addition, NASD found that Kapara made material misrepresentations to public customers in connection with the sale of securities to public customers. Moreover, NASD found that Kapara effected private securities transactions and failed to provide prior written notice to his member firm describing the proposed transaction, his proposed role therein, and stating whether he had or might receive compensation for it. The NAC reversed the finding that Kapara exercised discretion in the account of a public customer without the customer's written authorization and his firm's written acceptance of the account as discretionary. Jon Martee Wade (CRD #1642488, Registered Representative, Little Rock, Arkansas) was named as a respondent in an NASD complaint alleging that he purchased and sold mutual fund shares and municipal bonds in the account of a public customer that was excessive. The complaint also alleges that Wade's trading activity in the customer's account was without reasonable grounds for believing the recommendations and transactions were suitable in view of the frequency and nature of the recommended transactions, the customer's age, sophistication, and financial condition. In addition, the complaint alleges that Wade failed to respond to NASD requests for information and documents. (NASD Case #C8A050048)

NASD Orders Morgan Stanley to Pay over $6.1 Million for Fee-Based Account Violations

Firm's Customers to Receive $4.6 Million in Restitution

NASD fined Morgan Stanley DW, Inc., $1.5 million and has ordered the firm to pay more than $4.6 million in restitution for failing to adequately supervise its fee-based brokerage business. More than 3,500 Morgan Stanley customers will be receiving restitution.

Fee-based brokerage accounts are an alternative to traditional commission-based accounts. In a fee-based account, a customer is charged an annual fee that is either fixed or a percentage of the assets in the account, rather than a commission for each transaction as in a traditional brokerage account.

"Fee-based accounts can be appropriate for a wide range of customers," said NASD Vice Chairman Mary L. Schapiro. "But firms have an obligation to their customers to periodically reassess whether a fee-based account, like that offered by Morgan Stanley, remains appropriate. Firms must have systems and procedures in place that adequately evaluate the continued appropriateness of these accounts for their customers."

The Securities and Exchange Commission issued a report (commonly known as the "Tully Report") in 1995, noting that fee-based accounts are appropriate for investors who are building assets in their accounts, and may be appropriate for investors with moderate trading activity. But it also noted that because of the imposed annual fee, small and low-trading-activity accounts would pay higher costs as a fee-based account than as a commission-based account.

The following year, Morgan Stanley began offering its customers a fee-based brokerage account program, called "Choice." NASD found that Morgan Stanley recognized and instructed its brokers, consistent with the Tully Report, that Choice accounts were not appropriate for certain categories of investors, including buy-and-hold customers and certain accounts that fall below $50,000. The firm typically required a minimum of $50,000 in eligible assets to open a Choice account and charged an annual fee based on the total amount and type of eligible assets held in the account.

NASD found that between 2001 and 2003, all Choice accounts, regardless of size, paid a minimum annual fee of $1,000. By the end of 2001, the firm had 129,630 Choice accounts, holding $19.8 billion in assets. By the end of 2002, there were 157,143 Choice accounts, holding over $21.2

billion in assets. Morgan Stanley had 176,274 Choice accounts holding $30.6 billion in assets by the end of 2003.

NASD's investigation showed that from January 2001 through December 2003, Morgan Stanley failed to establish and maintain a supervisory system reasonably designed to review and monitor its fee-based brokerage business to determine whether Choice accounts remained appropriate for its Choice customers. As a result of the firm's deficient system and procedures, Morgan Stanley allowed 3,549 of its customers to continue using Choice accounts without adequately reassessing whether the accounts remained appropriate for them. These customers, who either conducted no trades in their Choice accounts for at least two consecutive years or had Choice accounts whose assets averaged below $25,000 for at least one full year, or both, will be receiving restitution under the settlement announced today.

NASD found that Morgan Stanley's written procedures did not prescribe a system for ongoing supervisory review of the appropriateness of Choice accounts until June 2003. Beginning in December 2003, the firm's branch managers began receiving monthly exception reports based on a suppressed-commission-to-fee ratio for all Choice accounts with an anniversary date within that month. At that time, Morgan Stanley provided the branch managers with specific guidance on the review to be conducted and the specific actions to be taken with respect to accounts that appeared on the exception report. Although the firm improved its system and procedures, Morgan Stanley's system and procedures still were fundamentally flawed, in that the exception reports failed to capture any accounts that fell below $50,000 in assets.

NASD also found that between January 2001 and December 2003, there were 1,818 Choice customers whose billable asset level averaged below $25,000 for at least one full year. Morgan Stanley's supervisory system failed to capture these accounts, so the firm failed to conduct an adequate supervisory review to determine whether the accounts should remain in the Choice program. All of these customers paid at least the minimum annual fee of $1,000 applicable at the time, which represented at least four percent of the assets in their Choice accounts-well in excess of Morgan Stanley's stated maximum rate of 2.25 percent. Those customers paid a total of $2.7 million in Choice fees.

In addition, NASD found that 2,062 customers conducted no trades in at least two consecutive Choice years. Although many of these customers had traded previously in their Choice accounts, after these customers went an entire Choice year without trading, the firm's system and procedures failed to determine whether these accounts remained appropriate for Choice. Consequently, without an adequate supervisory review of their particular circumstances, these 2,062 customers remained in Choice for at least an additional year, in which they incurred an additional $2.8 million in fees without conducting any trades.

In sanctioning Morgan Stanley, NASD took into account the firm's demonstrable steps, undertaken shortly after NASD's inquiry began, to enhance its system and procedures and which led to the firm's identification and removal of large numbers of accounts for which the Choice program was not appropriate.

In settling these matters, the firm neither admitted nor denied the charges, but consented to the entry of NASD's findings.

This case is part of NASD's continuing focus on fee-based brokerage accounts. In April, NASD fined Raymond James & Associates, Inc., $750,000 and ordered the firm to pay $138,000 in restitution for fee-based account violations. In November 2003, NASD issued Notice to Members 03-68, reminding firms that before opening a fee-based account they must have "reasonable grounds for believing that a fee-based program is appropriate for that particular customer"—taking into account the services provided, the projected cost to the customer, alternative fee structures available and the customer's fee structure preferences. In that notice, firms were also reminded that after a fee-based account has been opened, firms should implement procedures requiring a periodic review to determine whether the fee-based account remains appropriate for each of their customers.

NASD Fines Hornor, Townsend & Kent, Inc., $325,000 for Improper Sales Contests, Email and Supervision Violations

Firm Ordered to Prohibit Variable Product Sales Contests for Three Years

NASD fined Hornor, Townsend & Kent, Inc. (HTK), of Horsham, PA, $325,000 for conducting prohibited sales contests for its brokers and managers, as well as for email and supervision violations. The contests violated NASD rules by awarding exclusive or greater weight to the sales of proprietary variable life and variable annuity products over non-proprietary products, thereby creating improper incentives for brokers to sell those products instead of focusing on the investment's merits and the customer's financial interests. In resolving this matter, HTK agreed to prohibit any sales contests promoting the sale of variable life or annuity products for the next three years.

NASD also found that HTK failed to retain the email communications of approximately 83 employees. Those employees included HTK's president and two other senior managers, who approved at least some of the violative national sales contests. NASD rules require that email communications be retained for at least three years.

"By favoring the sale of some variable life and annuity products over others, these contests created conflicts of interest that could undermine the broker's obligation to recommend suitable investments based on the needs of the customer," said NASD Vice Chairman Mary L. Schapiro. "NASD rules are designed to prevent such conflicts between the broker's self-interest and the customer's."

Between 2001 and 2003, HTK conducted six national and numerous branch office sales contests to promote the sale of variable life and variable annuity products. When a firm stages a sales contest for a particular product line, NASD rules require that it cover all products the firm offers within that line, and that equal weight be given to the sales of all products within that line.

NASD found that several of the national sales contests were based only on the sale of variable products offered by Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, HTK's parent company. In determining the winners for some of the national contests, sales of Penn Mutual variable life products were given exclusive or greater weight than sales of Penn Mutual variable annuity products.

HTK offered or awarded substantial rewards for the national contest winners, including weekend trips to New York City, New Orleans, and Las Vegas; vouchers worth $400 or $800 that could be used for personal entertainment or education; and gift cards that could be used to purchase items from a number of brand-name merchants. The total value of the national sales contest awards exceeded $200,000.

Between 2001 and 2003, HTK's branch offices conducted additional sales contests. Nine were based solely on the sale of proprietary Penn Mutual variable products. In another four, sales of proprietary products were given greater weight than sales of non-proprietary products. Prizes for the branch contests included such items as golf trips, tickets to sporting events and other entertainment events, dinners, high-definition television sets, and other expensive electronic goods.

NASD found that the non-cash compensation that HTK provided to its sales force was substantial enough to provide the improper incentives that the non-cash compensation rules were designed to prevent.

NASD also found that HTK did not have in place an adequate supervisory system and procedures with respect to the non-cash compensation rules.

In settling this matter, the firm neither admitted nor denied the charges, but consented to the entry of NASD's findings.
