

Make no changes. It is detailed enough. The descriptions of alleged violations often omit important details that can bias the perception of an advisor. Providing test scores, etc. doesn't indicate the level of an advisor's qualifications or integrity. Why don't you publish a list of all the advisors who have had no blemishes on their record?

Robert T. Mann

President

First Georgetown Securities, Inc.

Local (703) 519-7700

Nat'l (800) 424-2993

Email: invest@firstgeorgetown.com